COURT REFUSES TO ARREST 'BIRTH OF NATION' PRODUCERS

WARLIKE ACTION IN ITALY

By BRIXTON D. ALLAIRE,
Personal Correspondent of the International News Service.

ROME, April 21.—Events are moving swiftly and decisive action by Italy may be expected at any moment. All Italian steamers engaged in transatlantic traffic have been notified not to sail for America until special permission is granted by the ministry of marine. They will be used as troop transports if Italy enters the war.

The Italian liner America suddenly has been taken over by the Italian government. The America was to have sailed today from Genoa. Many Americans were booked for New York.

Minister of War Zupelli was summoned to the royal palace last night and conferred with King Victor Emmanuel for several hours. Upon leaving the palace he hastened to the ministry of war and remained there most of the night.

CABINET MEETS TOMORROW.

A special cabinet meeting has been called for Thursday afternoon. What action is to be taken can only be conjectured. The International News Service correspondent today sent a note to Premier Salandra requesting a statement as to whether Italy intended to depart from its attitude of neutrality. It was returned with the stamped reply: "No answer."

The Trieste News says the public schools there have been closed, as the buildings are destined to house the German troops.

"Military preparations are proceeding feverishly along the Italian border. Tourpariera between Italy and Austria-Hungary have recently entered their last phase. The next step could be only an agreement or a rupture.

"For some days the latter issue has been considered not only certain, but imminent. The exchange of concessions, which would not satisfy the most legitimate national aspirations of Italy, would have had her return to the Triple Alliance and support their policy regarding the Adriatic; that is, to grant a seaport to Servia.

"... those who recall that Italy, on the occasion of the crisis concerning

IPSWICH DEATH A MYSTERY

State and local police officials today made renewed efforts to solve the mystery surrounding the sudden death of Arthur Hicks, thirty-one, Saturday night at the home of Mrs. Mary A. Rutherford, No. 37 High street, Ipswich, where he had lived as a member of the family for seventeen years.

While this investigating is going on Professor Whitney, of Harvard College, is preparing to examine the stomach of the deceased.

Meantime Mrs. Rutherford, who is a beneficiary under an insurance policy left by Hicks, and who has been closely questioned in connection with the death, says she has nothing to fear from the outcome of the autopsy. She said today:

TREATED AS A SON.

"I have absolutely nothing to fear from the examination to be made of the young man's stomach by Dr. Whitney. I have always treated Mr. Hicks like I would my own son. He left my home the morning of his death at 5:30 o'clock. The next I heard of him was when one of my neighbors came to my house and told me Arthur was lying unconscious on the ground about 200 yards up the street. That was about 7 o'clock at night.

"I went out and with a neighbor helped him to the house. Then we called Dr. Bailey, and when he came I implored him to send the boy to a hospital. He said it would be useless to do this, however, as he claimed that Arthur would die on the way.

"Arthur had been troubled with an abcess in his head all Winter. When I asked the doctor what caused him to drop unconscious in the street he said a number of blood vessels had burst, flooding the brain. He said death was due to a hemorrhage of the brain. I have nothing to fear from any investigation of this matter. In fact, I welcome one."

The fact that Mrs. Rutherford was a beneficiary by the deaths of several other persons, including her husband, within a few years, has caused comment in Ipswich since the Hicks death.

TREATED AS A SON.

An investigation of these cases by the authorities has revealed that but two of the deaths occurred in the Rutherford home. George Rutherford, her husband, died at a sanitarium after being in the place a year and a half. John Dorr, a brother, died at his own home, a mile below the Rutherford house. Hattie F. Rutherford, a daughter, died in the house of epileptic fits, an ailment to which she had been subject several years. Howard K. Anderson, a boarder in the house, died as the result of an accident while suffering from "alcoholism."

Hicks had lived with Mrs. Rutherford since he was a boy of fourteen. Mrs. Rutherford was a lifelong friend of his mother's. She took him in when his mother died.

The investigation of the case which was started by District Attorney Sullivan of Essex County, has been temporarily stayed pending the result of the investigation being made by the police.

BROWN EDITOR HELD IN $2,000

PROVIDENCE, April 21.—Robert Goodman of New Bedford, a Brown University freshman, was held in $2,000 in the city court today for a continued hearing on April 30 on a charge of publishing a paper in which indecent language was used, this having reference to "The Searchlight," a new publication which he played the police, some hotels and the social evil of the city.

"The Searchlight" is only a four-page sheet, but copies of it sold as high as a dollar each, especially after the police commission undertook to suppress it.

The commissioners were attacked in it as "makers of criminals." Certain hotels were named. But most daring of all was the paper's printing of the names of several girls as frequenters of these hotels.

"The Searchlight" made its how Saturday. The police say that Goodman, through newsboys, sold 3,000 copies. On Patriots' Day the circulation was 2,500. There were 2,500 fresh copies for yesterday when the police commission stopped the sale and secured a warrant for the publisher's arrest. Goodman was arrested last night on Brown campus.

"The Searchlight" has been frank, whether truthful or not. It has used words common to the reports of vice commissions and such documents, but which seldom find their way into newspapers offered for public sale. It is on these words and on descriptions of alleged conditions in the city that the police base their charges against the young publisher.

Goodman said he could get New Bedford securities for a bond last night, but the police would not accept anything outside the city, so the prisoner remained in jail all night.

In court today, before Judge Gorham, he pleaded not guilty. He retained A. L. Jodin as counsel. After bail was re-set at $2,000 efforts to obtain bondsmen were renewed.

Goodman is twenty-two years old. The police say that "The Searchlight" is printed in Fall River and that it is modeled after a publication that stirred New Bedford, Goodman's home city, not long ago.

WOMAN MAY FORGIVE A REVOLVER SHOT, BUT NOT SPANKING

NEW YORK, April 21.—Pleading for the release of Frederick Ulmer, who shot and wounded her with a revolver several months ago, Miss Ethel Odell, eighteen, declares that it was all her fault because she drove him half crazy when she spurned his love.

In another court, Mrs. John F. Bebell, declaring that her husband laid her over his knee and spanked her with a slipper, has sued for separation.

Vincent Astor Buys a Flying Boat for Sport

NEW YORK, April 21.—Vincent Astor has purchased a flying boat for his personal use, and will probably make trial flights in it within the next few weeks from the Hudson river near his home, Fernecliff, at Rhinebeck. The boat is built for two passengers, and it is said that Mrs. Astor intends making flights with her husband, although this has not been positively announced.

If the boat proves a success on the Hudson it is probable that Mr. Astor will take it to Newport this Summer. He has had a floating hangar built for the boat, so that it may be towed wherever he desires to take it.

Mr. Astor has purchased the boat for sport. It was built by W. Starling Burgess, the yacht builder, in his yards at Marblehead, Mass. It has a 100-horsepower engine.

Bond and Check Activity Show Better Business

How much money is now being invested in securities in this country in the big revival of business is shown by the record of New York bond sales. In two hours this morning they amounted to $6,634,000, which is the record not only for a morning but for any full day this year. It looked at noon as if the 1914 record for a full day would be broken, too. Last year's record was made on January 22, when bond sales totalled $7,316,500.

The improvement in business in Boston and throughout New England is reflected by the number of checks handled daily by big banks in this city. National Shawmut handled 93,241 checks yesterday, the largest number in its history.

101st Birthday for Roxbury Woman

Mrs. Lydia French quietly observed the 101st anniversary of her birth today at the home of her daughter at No. 9 Tolman place, Roxbury. Mrs. French was born in Seabrook, N. H. Previous to living in Roxbury Mrs. French resided in Lynn for many years. During the day many friends called at the home to extend congratulations to Mrs. French. Mrs. French lives with her two daughters, Mrs. Georgie Hill and Miss Anna French.

WILL NOT CLOSE UP FILM PLAY

At the opening of the continued hearing on the southern photoplay, "The Birth of a Nation," before Judge Thomas H. Dowd in the city criminal court today, Judge Dowd said that, if the scene where "Gus," a colored film character, chases a white girl to suicide over a cliff is eliminated, he would not issue warrants for the management of the film or theatre.

The police, on complaint of 2,000 or more Boston negroes, backed by several white sympathisers, asked for warrants for arrest of J. J. McCarthy, traveling manager of the film, and of Proprietor John B. Schoeffel of the Tremont Theatre, where the film is running.

When Judge Dowd made his conditional ruling on the film, counsel for the theatre said the management did not propose to show anything illegal.

The police application was based on the statute regarding immoral or suggestive entertainment.

Judge Dowd said that the film was "a magnificent production" and that there was no race question at issue, but merely the morality of the production.

CURTAILS COLONEL'S EXPOSE

By L. B. V. RUCKER,
Personal Correspondent of the International News.

COURTHOUSE, Syracuse, N. Y., April 21.—Former President Roosevelt on the witness stand this afternoon, in the trial of William Barnes' $50,000 libel suit against the colonel, turned on the light full force on "inside politics." He quoted Barnes and Senator Platt as to the power and need of bosses.

The defence was allowed to read a letter from Barnes to Roosevelt during the Governor Hughes administration, when the Hart-Agnew anti-racing bill was pending.

"I will say," said Justice Andrews, "that while this witness (Roosevelt) may allow that his published utterances were uttered without malice he may not put in the record anything outside his filed answer, unless he can produce witnesses in corroboration."

"The ruling is against us," said John M. Bowers, in a whisper, while aloud he said:

"We note an exception."

Justice Andrews: "Exception allowed."

When court reconvened Justice Andrews handed down a decision that Colonel Roosevelt could testify to nothing not contained in his formal answer to the Barnes complaint unless he could prove his testimony by corroborative witnesses.

The Colonel, however, apparently was not curbed.

The Colonel then resumed the stand for further direct examination. He was more like his old self than at any time since his return from the River of Doubt and the man-eating fish in South America. His teeth glistened in the old T. R. smile. The only preparation he made to undergo the expected questioning was to exchange a pair of thick-lensed eyeglasses for the gold-bowed spectacles he wore into court.

Mr. Bowers fired the opening gun by asking Colonel Roosevelt when he had any conversation with Mr. Barnes.

Mr. Ivins objected but was overruled.

"I was called on by Mr. Barnes at Oyster Bay," said the Colonel, "in 1898 between the time I was elected Governor of New York and the time I assumed the office.

"Mr. Barnes gave me the impression that he believed in the platform-bosses of boss rule."

The defense then re-introduced a letter offered yesterday from Barnes to Roosevelt.

"I told Mr. Barnes," continued Roosevelt, with a broad grin, "that Mr. Platt told me while I was elected that he controlled the Legislature and that anything I wanted that the bosses did not want would be defeated. Mr. Platt said the organization had control."

PLATT'S DEFENCES OF BOSSES.

"Did Mr. Platt say 'bosses'?" interrupted Mr. Ivins.

"I am not certain," said Mr. Roosevelt, "but he referred to the machine leaders.

"I told Mr. Barnes that I had been sent for by Platt in 1898, who asked me to call on him at the Fifth Avenue Hotel."

"The Amen corner?" asked Mr. Ivins.

"Yes," snapped the Colonel.

He said he saw Platt, and Platt told him that the organization must rule.

Against the vigorous and repeated protests of Mr. Ivins, Mr. Roosevelt then told of Mr. Barnes' call on him when he told Roosevelt of his talk with Platt.

"Mr. Barnes told me," resumed Mr. Roosevelt, "that the organization must rule. He said it was necessary to have bosses. The people, he said, were not fit to govern. They were better off with bosses."

"Was anyone else present when you met Senator Platt or Mr. Barnes?" asked Mr Bowers.

"One man knew of my meeting with Platt. I got a telegram from him."

"Will you name him?" interposed Mr. Ivins.

"I object," said Mr. Bowers, "to the plaintiff's counsel interrupting the witness."

IVINS CALMES MIRTH.

"Do not make objections or ask questions when they will interrupt the continuity of the witness," said Justice Andrews.

"I cannot break his continuity, your honor," returned Mr. Ivins, and even Roosevelt and Barnes joined in the laugh that was squelched by the court's gavel wielded vigorously by Justice Andrews.

Mr. Roosevelt then was allowed to detail several conversations with Barnes. One of them dealt with former Governor Charles B. Hughes.

"I told him (Barnes) that Hughes was a boss," said Mr. Roosevelt. "My sympathies and friendship at that time were all with Mr. Barnes and against Mr. Hughes."

The witness then told of other conversations with Barnes from 1898 to 1907, in all of which he said Mr. Barnes upheld bossism and said he could handle the Legislature.

Many objections were made and overruled.

HEAD BARNES LETTER.

The defence then was allowed to read a letter from Barnes to Roosevelt in 1910, during the Hughes administration, when the Hart-Agnew anti-racing bill was pending.

This was the letter referred to yesterday mentioning August Belmont, in which Barnes told Roosevelt that he had changed his mind and was in favor of the bill to abolish horse racing despite his friendship for Mr. Belmont. In this letter Mr. Barnes reiterated his belief that the organization must rule, and referred to himself as not being "a machine-made politician or a patronage broker."

Justice Andrews ruled against the defence when he sustained Mr. Ivins' motion to strike out Mr. Roosevelt's statement, "And the Governor [refers to the Hart-Agnew bill." Barnes, in the letter, did not mention the bill, but referred to "the matter in question."

"Ruling Is Against Us," Declares Counsel Bowers for the Defense.

Amster Leads Fight Against Receivers

CHICAGO, April 21.—While the receivers, Jacob M. Dickinson, formerly Secretary of War, and H. U. Mudge, president of Rock Island, were operating the 8,000 mile system of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company today, Herbert L. Stern, a Chicago attorney was retained under the guise with a view of bringing action to oppose the receivership, if conditions could be found to warrant such action.

Mr. Stern informed Federal Judge Carpenter, who appointed the receivers yesterday that he was investigating the circumstances surrounding the proceedings to protect the interests of the minority stockholders. He said he was acting on instructions telegraphed by N. L. Amster of Boston, who was elected a director of the Rock Island recently, and who is the head of the minority stockholders committee.

WHIPPLE SCORES CHOATE'S METHOD

Sherman L. Whipple, in his closing argument at the $2,000,000 Cabot will trial in Dedham, today scored Charles F. Choate, counsel for the will, for what Whipple called "mud-slinging tactics during the trial."

The case, which started February 15, is expected to go to the jury about noon tomorrow. Today's session was divided between counsel for both sides, each having two and a half hours to sum up the evidence. Judge Hardy will charge the jury tomorrow.

Attorney Whipple, senior counsel for Mrs. Lloyd Vernon Briggs, who is contesting the will of her father, opened his address by thanking the jury for the courtesy and patience shown during the long trial.

"It has been my misfortune by reason of my illness to be a prolong your trials," said Attorney Whipple. "Still I saw nothing of an expression of any feeling on that account. Indeed, you were most considerate and I was touched by the thoughtfulness and courtesy you showed us."

"Before addressing myself to the questions which are really involved in this case, which are to be submitted, there are one or two outside matters to which I want to refer very briefly.

"There is an old saying, or rule of strategy, among lawyers in the trial of cases that is expressed in these words: 'If you have a weak case, abuse the other side; give it to them good and hard; everything to win and nothing to lose; throw all the mud at them that you can; in the first place some of it may stick; in the second place, if it does not, it will take the other side much longer to brush it off and they will get so interested in brushing they will forget the main issue.'

Mr. Whipple then referred to the "unspeakable bitterness" that he said had been shown toward Dr. Briggs and the "sneering suggestions" about Mrs. Briggs. He went on:

"Mr. Choate developed that Mrs. Briggs' father had received half the income her mother used to have had devoted to per cent. of her income every year to public service and to charity. Mrs. Briggs didn't bring that out on her counsel. She wasn't bragging about it or suggesting it, and it is absolutely uncontradicted.

"He also brought out that $100,000 fund that came from her grandmother and which she kept sacred to the purposes for which it had been used, something like $2,000 or $3,000 a year. Mrs. Briggs' counsel didn't bring it out. I didn't even know it—this quiet, unostentatious charity of a good, noble-hearted woman. And how did he then treat it?

"He brought out that among other public services that she had performed she had given a pool-roller to the town of Hanover. Then he referred to it as the 'steam-roller charity' in that contemptuous vein which it seemed to me was uncalled for.

"And it seemed to me that while Mr. Choate really realized the sort of things he had brought out, he was using them to prejudice by his sneering attitude with regard to them. It ought not to be done, gentlemen; you ought not to be prejudiced and I don't believe you will be."

POLICEMAN WINS AS 500 LOOK ON

Charles Neil, who admits that he was pardoned out of Deer Island after serving only four months and sixteen days of a two-year sentence for larceny, is in the hands of the police again on a new larceny charge, following a desperate fight with Patrolman Timothy Kelly of City Hall station, in which Neil and Kelly rolled about in the street for five minutes, while 500 spectators watched.

Neil was brought into the city court today for arraignment on the new larceny charge. He showed the effects of his fight with Patrolman Kelly, although the patrolman had not drawn his club.

Neil was arrested at 6 p. m. in the market district. Patrolman Kelly saw him enter the doorway of the Chatham South Market building, corner of Chatham and South Market streets, and investigated. Finding the roof skylight locked on the outside, Kelly went back to South Market street to look. On a tip from a watchman Kelly went upstairs at 4-5 South Market street and caught Neil going up through the skylight.

Investigation showed that the office of the Whittier Woodenware Company on the second floor had been entered and that $10.50 had been taken from the cash register. The break and larceny are now charged against the prisoner.

Neil, who is a large, powerful man, had to make his way, the police say, across the sloping hip-roofs of the buildings running from Chatham to 4-5 South Market street, a risky trip.

Taking his man to the nearest box, Kelly had just time to pull down the lock for the wagon when Neil jerked himself away and ran. Kelly sprinted and caught him. Neil fought. The two went down. Kelly is one of the younger men on the force and a "scrapper." He would not draw his club, so he was having a tough time with his muscular opponent. While the "mill" was at its fastest the patrol wagon from City Hall station arrived. Driver Clarence Gleason jumped into the fight and Neil was soon aboard the wagon and on his way.

The prisoner gave the name of James Gorron, but today he changed it to Charles Neil, saying he once worked for the Whittier Woodenware Company.

FLANK MOVE BY FRENCH IN ALSACE

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK,
Personal Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, April 21.—With important Vosges crests in their possession the French are now operating along three different rivers of Alsace in their efforts to flank the German right wing by reaching the Rhine.

Along the Fecht, Lauch and Weissbach and in the hills on both sides of these streams are raging daily hand-to-hand conflicts which are neglected in the official communiques, but which in their totality will have an important effect on the result of the operations in the western theatre of war.

It is in Alsace that the French have their only opportunity to flank the German armies. Frontal attacks in the Woevre, in Champagne, in the Argonne and in Flanders have established the fact that the German lines can be pierced only by the sacrifice of enormous numbers of men. It is in Alsace that the allies have their main chance.

While it is impossible to state definitely the disposition that is to be made of the Kitchener army when it is finally assembled on French soil, the belief is growing here that a large part of the British troops will be used on the Alsatian front. It is known that this phase of operations has been thoroughly discussed by Lord Kitchener and General Joffre.

The British War Secretary has made another of his secret visits to France. It was learned today. He visited Field Marshal French at British headquarters and then motored by night to the town where General Joffre and his staff are located. Lord Kitchener returned to England immediately after his conference with General Joffre.

Progress in the forest of Montmare is claimed for the French troops in today's official communique from the War Office. It is at this point that the French troops have resumed their attacks upon the German positions supporting their wedge at St. Mihiel.

TWO COUNTER ATTACKS.

In attempts to recapture the trenches they had lost, the Germans made two counter attacks Tuesday, but both were repulsed. The communique also reports further operations by the Belgian aviators. They have bombarded the German arsenal at Bruges and the German aviation grounds at Lieseweghe.

The text of the communique follows:

"Cannonades of some violence took place in the region of Arras, between the Oise and the Aisne and between the Meuse and Moselle yesterday.

"In the Montmare wood, close to the Flirey-Essey highway, our attacks made a slight progress. Two German counter attacks on a line of trenches we succeeded in gaining during the day of April 20 were repulsed.

"These attacks took place at 6:30 p. m. and 7 p. m.

"Belgian aviators bombarded the arsenal at Bruges and the aviation ground at Lieseweghe."

CLAIM AUSTRIANS USED DUM-DUMS

By FRANCIS LAVELLE MURRAY,
Personal Correspondent of International News Service.

PETROGRAD, April 21.—Renewal of fighting along the Pilica-Nida front in Southwestern Poland is reported in official advices received from the front today. It is believed that the Austro-German forces in this region have opened an offensive to co-operate with the troops on the Dunajec River front in Galicia. No details of the fighting have yet been received.

The War Office today issued an official statement accusing the Austrians of using explosive bullets.

"Documents found at Przemysl" says the statement, "throw a light on the matter of the use of explosive bullets by the enemy. On January 25 General Selivanoff informed the commander of the fortress that in view of the frequent use of these bullets by the troops in Przemysl Grand Duke Nicholas had ordered the shooting of Austrians found with dum-dums in their possession.

"General Kusmanek gave an evasive reply, but said that two Russian prisoners would be put to death for each Austrian shot. After our firm declaration the firing of explosive bullets ceased.

"The situation of this puzzle was found in a secret order captured at Przemysl dated February 5. This ordered all explosive bullets sent to the artillery depots and forbids their being given out except by express order of the commanding General.

"On April 18, on the front along the Nida and Pilica Rivers, the enemy fired explosive bullets exclusively."

Americans Stranded as Italy Holds Ships

PARIS, April 21.—A number of Americans are stranded at Genoa because steamers, including the Italian liner America, suspended sailings because they had been taken over by the Italian government.

End of War by June 1 Foreseen in Ship Orders

NEW YORK, April 21.—Orders issued by the Hamburg-American and North German-Lloyd steamship lines are generally interpreted today as indicating these German shipowners expect the war to end by June 1.

The orders are that clerks in the local offices wanting vacations must take them before the first of June and be prepared for steady work after that date.

The ships of these lines have been tied up since war broke out. It is considered extremely improbable the ships would again be used before the end of the war or that the clerks would be needed unless the ships again went into service.

RUSSIANS DRIVEN OUT OF TARNOW

By FREDERICK WERNER.
Personal Correspondent of International News Service.

BERLIN, April 21.—(By wireless)—Tarnow, the important Galician town forty-five miles east of Cracow, which was lost by the Austrians several months ago, has been evacuated by the Russians, according to dispatches from Vienna today.

These advices state that all the Russian troops were withdrawn several days ago to avoid the effects of the heavy fire of Austrian artillery brought up to bombard the town. The Russians still hold positions east of Tarnow, which has not yet been occupied by the Austrians.

FRENCH AVIATORS IN RHINE VALLEY

By FREDERICK WERNER,
Personal Correspondent of the International News Service.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam, April 21.—Twenty-two non-combatants, ten of them children and four women, were killed by bombs dropped from French aeroplanes upon German towns during the last week, according to figures compiled by the Lokal Anzeiger from official reports and published today.

The newspaper denounced the French aviators as "murderers who prefer to attack unfortified towns rather than risk their lives in deeds that would be of military benefit to their country."

The latest aerial raid reported occurred Tuesday when three French aviators flying through the Rhine valley dropped bombs upon the railway stations at Mulheim and Habscheim without doing material damage. Later they shelled the unfortified and ungarrisoned towns of Kandern and Loerach.

Five bombs were dropped at Kandern. Four fell upon the school building. One child was killed. At Loerach six bombs were dropped, killing another child and injuring four others.

MASS TROOPS ON ITALIAN BORDER

Servia's demands for a seaport on the Adriatic, did all she could to obtain Austria's consent, and only desisted at a threat of war, it is evident that the latter condition in particular was regarded as unacceptable.

Reports received here today from Austria say that the dual monarchy is hurriedly gathering troops on the Italian frontier to face a possible invasion by Italian soldiers.

A large contingent of Austrian troops, the reports say, have been quartered at Monfalcone, Ronchi and Sagrado. The Austrians are also said to have strongly fortified the Isonzo river with entrenchments behind which batteries already are in position.

The Messagero says that Michael De Giers, the new Russian Ambassador to Italy, is delaying his arrival in Rome because of his desire before leaving Petrograd to arrange with his own government for the conclusion of an agreement between Russia and Italy not only concerning Italy's intervention in the war, but with regard to Italy's position when peace is declared. The paper adds that an almost perfect accord continues to exist between Italy and Roumania and that therefore Italy's neutrality is approaching its end.

Baron de Macchio, the Austrian Ambassador, already has given notice to the Embassy servants, who are now paid daily, it is said, and the same is true of the payment of tradesmen's bills for goods supplied to the Embassy.

It is stated in Vatican circles that the visit made to the Pope a few days ago by Prince von Buelow was to bid farewell to the Pontiff, as the diplomat believes his departure from Rome is imminent.

Although members of the Papal Guard and the higher lay officials of the Vatican are exempted from service in the Italian army, many of them have asked permission to enlist, including Marquis Montoro, standard-bearer of the church, one of the highest offices held by a layman.

Ulrich Wille, commander of the Swiss army, is quoted in an interview in the Tribuna as declaring his country's military forces must be kept mobilized.

Although no other power at present threatens Switzerland, he said, an incident might occur on the frontier at any time which would compel the Swiss to enforce their rights and their neutrality.

Colonel Wille closed the interview by saying:

"Suppose as a mere hypothesis, that any one wished to violate our neutrality; they first must crush us."

WHERE SWITZERLAND MAY YET BECOME A SECOND BELGIUM

A—Where the Austrians are fortifying and massing troops. This section of the frontier, being non-mountainous, furnishes the best route for an invasion of Austria by Italy. On the other hand, Austrians attempting to enter Italy at this point would be subjected to shelling by the Italian fleet

B—Pola, the chief Austrian naval base.

C—Venice, the fortified Italian naval base.

D—The Swiss-German frontier, which affords the easiest pathway (through Switzerland) for the movement of great masses of German troops into Italy. The whole Austro-Italian border, excepting at A, consists of immense mountain barriers, impregnably fortified on both sides. Switzerland's great railroad tunnels through the Alps are the highways for practically all European travel by land into Italy.

NEW ZEPPELINS FOR LONDON RAID

GENEVA, April 21.—According to a Swiss newspaper Count Zeppelin is personally directing the construction of a number of new Zeppelins to be used in an attack upon London. This newspaper says that the new Zeppelins will have a capacity of 25,000 cubic metres. The latest existing types have only 17,500. The aero craft must be finished in two weeks, where formerly three weeks were required. They will carry heavier bombs. The construction staff has been nearly doubled and the machinery augmented. The new Zeppelins will cost about $750,000 each.

The reason for the new activity is that the Kaiser is displeased with the recent isolated attempts to raid England and wants a big squadron to attack London.

FORCE GERMANS TO QUIT TOWNS

By HERBERT TEMPLE.

Personal Correspondent of International News Service.

LONDON, April 21.—"German troops have been compelled to evacuate several hamlets near the La Bassee Railway," says a news agency dispatch from Amsterdam. "These have not yet been occupied by the British because the enemy's artillery maintains a destructive fire upon the houses. The Germans are preparing for a partial retreat."

The War Office refused to confirm the report that the Germans were preparing to retreat, but the censor permitted its publication.

General French's detailed report on the battle fought and resulted in the capture of Hill No. 60 is being anxiously awaited here as a result of the admission in the bi-weekly summary that the British losses were heavy.

Neuve Chapelle, with its heavy casualties, has prepared England for other great losses. General French's report on Neuve Chapelle showed plainly the lack of officers. Casualties among officers briefly reported from time to time bears this out. Death notices in the London papers are further evidence. Among the dead are frequently listed officers only twenty or twenty-one years old.

A Sluis dispatch sent via Amsterdam states that the British troops are approaching Quievrain and have vigorously bombarded that town. The Germans at Lille have been heavily reinforced and the line between Lille and the Belgian frontier has been transformed into a gigantic fortress.

On Sunday, the dispatch adds, British troops captured 217 Germans between La Bassee and Bethune.

150 Are Killed in Turks' "Holy War"

By International News Service.

SIMLA, India, April 21.—Turkey's call for a "holy war" is bearing fruit. Official announcement was made today that a force of Mohammedan troops tried to invade India from Afghanistan on April 18. The Mohammedans were driven back with a loss of 150 men.

LAND 20,000 FOR ATTACK ON TURKS

By FREDERICK WERNER.

Personal Correspondent of International News Service.

BERLIN, April 21.—(By wireless) Twenty thousand English and French troops have been landed near Enos, European Turkey, for a land attack upon the Dardanelles forts, according to a heavily censored dispatch printed by the Tages Zeitung. The landing was effected after a heavy cannonade between the Turkish batteries and the allies' warships.

The dispatch printed by the Tages Zeitung was mutilated by the censor, who also deleted its place of origin.

Another dispatch from Athens says that great activity is noted among the English troops on the island of Lemnos and that troop transports are arriving daily from Alexandria. The Turkish censorship has been tightened. All indications point to the belief that strong action against the Dardanelles is about to be taken.

Enos is a seaport forty-eight miles north of the entrance to the Dardanelles. It is connected with Constantinople by railroad, branches of which also run into Gallipoli peninsula.

TURKS DRIVE BACK ALLIED FLEET IN THE DARDANELLES

By LUDWIG VON KLEIN.

Personal Correspondent of International News Service.

CONSTANTINOPLE, via Berlin and Amsterdam, April 21.—British and French warships have renewed their attack on the Dardanelles and a great fleet of the allies' transports is manoeuvring off the Anatolian coast between Tenedos and Mitylene awaiting a favorable opportunity to land troops.

The bombardment of the Dardanelles forts was resumed late Monday afternoon. Under cover of the warships' fire six torpedo boats attempted to penetrate the Dardanelles, but an official statement issued by the War Office today states they were driven back.

The bombardment was kept up for two hours from the Gulf of Saros and was resumed the next day for more than five hours. A heavy fog then forced the warships to cease their operations.

The official statement from the War Office says two of the torpedo boats were damaged by the return fire from the Turkish forts and that one is believed to have been sunk.

Five battleships and seven cruisers comprised the attacking fleet

Turk Positions in Black Sea Shelled

By International News Service.

PETROGRAD, April 21.—Another naval raid against the Turkish coast positions in the Caucasus region was announced by the Russian admiralty today in the following statement:

"The first flotilla of our torpedo boat destroyers in the Black Sea has bombarded the Turkish positions at Archaeve and near the village of Sounvintze.

Archaeve is thirty miles southwest of Patreum on the Black Sea Coast. It has been used as a concentration point for the Turkish troops opposing the Russians in the Caucasus.

before, but the court room was well filled.

Mayor Curley announced today that he conferred with the management of the film, that the management had agreed to certain changes and that, so far as the Mayor's office goes, the film may continue.

At the opening court session yesterday Judge Dowd heard three witnesses for the negroes and the police, then adjourned court, saying he would see the film for himself at night. He attended the show last night. When the hearing began today Judge Dowd, addressing counsel for both sides, said:

"Gentlemen, I don't think I will hear any more evidence, as I have witnessed the film. The question of race is not involved. It is a question entirely of the decency and morality of the play.

"It is a magnificent production; one of the finest I have ever seen.

"If the management will eliminate the scene of the chase of the white girl by the character 'Gus,' where he chases her to a cliff where she jumps off and is killed, I will not issue a summons."

John F. Cusick, counsel for the theatre: "The scene referred to by Your Honor has been before Mayor Curley and the management for four days. The management wishes to say that they do not propose to add anything except what is within the law. In this picture there are over three miles of film—"

"Filth!" interjected William H. Lewis, colored, the former Assistant United States District Attorney, who sat directly back of Cusick.

Cusick turned and said sharply: "You're an educated colored man, Mr. Lewis, and ought not to say that."

Judge Dowd: "I don't think there was any open attempt on the part of the management to violate the law."

WANT CASE TRIED.

J. Mott Hallowell, counsel for the petitioners: "We ask that summonses issue and that the case be tried on its merits as we believe that other scenes are as objectionable as those referred to by the court."

Judge Dowd: "There are over one thousand scenes where white people are portrayed, worse than appear in this play, and we should not allow the color question to arise. Owing to the amount of money involved the management should be given a chance to eliminate objectionable scenes."

Mr. Hallowell asked for ten minutes in which to argue. Judge Dowd allowed the request, cautioning Mr. Hallowell that the only question was that of the time to be allowed for elimination of the cliff scene.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 21.—Attorneys for Leo M. Frank, sentenced to death for the murder of Mary Phagan and whose habeas corpus case was decided adversely by the United States Supreme Court, announced that no effort will be made to obtain a rehearing before that tribunal.

They said an application for executive clemency would be presented to the Georgia Prison Commission at an early date.

1 Killed, 13 Injured by Black Hand Bomb

ERIE, Pa., April 21.—Samuel Leonoff, sixty, was killed, his wife fatally injured and his five children and seven boarders in the house were seriously hurt today when a dynamite bomb exploded under a bed and demolished the home. The explosion took place while all the inmates of the house were asleep. The police blame blackhanders.

DR. MONTESSORI WORKS WONDERS

NEW YORK, April 21.—"I can make children passionately adore the multiplication tables. Furthermore, I maintain that long division can be made as fascinating as a fairy tale. The secret lies in the child. Make him absorbingly interested in what he is doing and he will revolutionize your ideas of what he can do."

Thus briefly Dr. Maria Montessori epitomized her ideas of child culture which have made her one of the foremost educators of the world.

"I actually created a revolution in my school over the multiplication tables," she declared. "I got the children so excited about them that they wept when their parents couldn't "buy" them and let them take the tables home. Little tablets, colored beads, sticks, anything that appealed to the child's interest was used in teaching them.

"The keynote of everything is the child's own interest. My children are willing to spend weeks on one task where the other children tire of it in a few hours' time. No child is forced. Everything is spontaneous."

ANOTHER DRASTIC DRUG BILL SIGNED

Governor Walsh today signed another drastic measure designed to restrict the use of narcotic drugs.

The intent of the bill, which embraces thirteen sections and incidentally contains one sentence of 650 words, is to prevent the sale and distribution of cocaine, opium, morphine and heroin, except for bonafide medicinal purposes.

The bill makes it unlawful to distribute the narcotic drugs except upon the written prescription of physicians, scientific institutions or persons who have qualified under State laws to issue such written prescriptions. It is also made unlawful to fill a prescription a second time. It contains more than a two grains of opium, one-quarter grain of morphine or one-eighth of a grain of heroin.

The possession of any narcotic drugs on a person not permitted by law to sell or distribute them will be construed as violation of the law.

Violation of the new drug law may be punishable by a fine as high as $1,000 and imprisonment in jail for one year, or by both fine and imprisonment.

PRINCE ALBERT

is genuine pipe-joy plumb full of smoke happiness and that means flavor and fragrance and dream stuff. But the one thing that puts P. A. in solid is the famous patented process that has sent the tongue-torture kinds back to the hills. The patented process that makes P. A. so friendly is controlled exclusively by us. That's why we say there never can be another tobacco as biteless as P. A.

Prince Albert is sold at all smoke stations. The tidy red tin, 10c; the toppy red bag, 5c; also, pound and half-pound tin humidors.

Here's a hunch: We sure do recommend to our friends the 10-ea. crystal-glass humidor with the sponge in the top that keeps P. A. in fine condition. One home, one at the office, always assures some smoke!

VILLA SAYS HE'LL AVENGE DEFEAT

AGUAS VALIENTES, April 21.—Walking nervously about his headquarters, and gritting his teeth as he talked, General Villa today dictated to a correspondent for the International News Service his views on his defeat. The Northern leader had just received the first encouraging tidings since his rout, a dispatch that his rear guard had repulsed an attack by Obregon's advance guards at Salamanca. The advance guard had been closely pursuing Villa's troops retreating from the battlefield of Celaya. The news cheered him and he dictated the following:

By FRANCISCO VILLA.

For the first time since I captured Juarez in 1913, I have known defeat.

But when the game is fully played the citizens of the world will admit that Villa is not yet through with his fight against the enemies of the Mexican people and that the cause which I represent eventually will triumph. I even thought my blood and that of my soldiers must be poured out on the soil of my fair country to bring this about.

It is possible the American people do not believe that I have been whipped.

They thought I was invincible.

Tell them, please, that the Carranzistas have struck me a heavy blow but they have not put me out.

I believe in confessing the truth, even if truth is not complimentary.

Tell your people that I attacked an entrenched army of 20,000 troops with an equal number of men when I should have had three times that number.

Up to the last moment of fighting I still thought Obregon was licked, but, unfortunately, some of my officers showed the white feather in the most shameful manner, and I was forced to order a retreat.

Had I not done it I would have lost my whole army.

On top, tell your people that we are cheerful, that my men are in good spirits and eager to meet Obregon's army and avenge the shame we sustained Sunday.

Here I will reorganize my army, name new commanders, and in less than ten days go down and meet Obregon and send him back to his bewhiskered chief with his tail stuck between his legs.

SISTERS WAR FOR CUSTODY OF GIRL

The legal battle for the custody of Edith Cauley, thirteen, who has lived with her aunt, Mrs. Ellen Masson, No. 1162 Columbus avenue, for the last nine years, will be waged in the Suffolk Probate Court tomorrow by her parents and Mrs. Masson.

Mrs. Masson claims that her sister, Mrs. Cauley, allowed her to adopt the child after the death of her own little girl ten years ago. The aunt refuses to surrender Edith, who is in the seventh grade of the George Putnam School, Roxbury.

"I love Edith just as if she were my own little girl," said Mrs. Masson today. "Since my husband died four years ago she has been my only companion. She came to live with me when she was four years old. She was troubled with nervousness. I had her treated until she was nursed back into good health. About two weeks ago her mother went to the school Edith attends and tried to take her away, but the master would not allow the child to go without my permission. Then I started proceedings for legal guardianship."

Judge Morton Has Jury Make New Kind of Verdict

Judge James M. Morton of the United States District Court, after a jury had reported its verdict in an automobile accident case, presented an alternative verdict which the jury considered and then returned. This was done for the purpose of preventing a retrial.

The jury had awarded damages of $3,000 against Charles H. Stebbins, attorney, and his son, Charles G. Stebbins, for injuries received by George Freeman, a Lexington farmer, who was run down by the Stebbins automobile. Testimony showed that the son was operating the car in which the father was riding when Freeman was struck. The defence had disputed the responsibility of the father as he was not operating the car, but the jury returned a verdict against both father and son.

Judge Morton told the jurors that he would present an alternative verdict in favor of the father so that a second trial might be averted.

The alternative verdict states: "If the plaintiff is not as a matter of law entitled to recover against Charles H. Stebbins, the jury finds for the defendant and consent that this verdict may be entered upon order of the Court of Appeals for the First Circuit or of the Supreme Court of the United States."

MRS. PUTNAM HITS AT PEACE WOMEN

Jane Addams, in advocating the principles of the Women's Peace Party, is doing more harm that good, said Marion Craig Wentworth's "War Brides" is a "highly immoral play," according to Mrs. William Lowell Putnam, who addressed the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Association Opposed to the Further Extension of Suffrage to Women at the Somerset.

Mrs. Putnam declared that "the peace the women of the peace party want is not peace—it is only temporary respite from strife. The peace they advocate is the surest prelude to further war. Peace is founded on honor, but the Woman's Peace Party is not founded on honor.

"'War Brides,' she continued, 'extols a woman who, having put her hand to the plow, turns back when the conditions of life no longer suit her. This does not appear to have struck any one. They all go and weep and none aware with that pleasing sense of thrift dazzled by the author's sophistry."

SENATE ADVANCES PURE MILK BILL

Pure milk legislation has survived its crucial stage in the State Senate. The bill prohibiting the handling of milk produced under unclean or unsanitary conditions was advanced to a third reading by the Senate, twenty-one to twelve.

Senator James F. Cavanagh declared the bill seeks to remedy an existing evil for which there is now no cure, the shipping of impure milk produced outside the State into Boston. As the bill is primarily to remedy that defect in the law, he said, it would impose no unwarranted hardship upon the Massachusetts farmers.

"This is a bill to prevent the farmers from making corpses out of children," declared Senator Sanford Bates of Dorchester. He predicted that unless the bill were passed its proponents would present it year after year, so sincere are they in their effort.

Senator George H. Ellis of Newton, who has been investigating the milk situation as a member of the special committee of the Chamber of Commerce, declared that the troubles of the Massachusetts farmers are caused by the Saunders bill, which permits discrimination in milk shipping in favor of the Maine and northern New Hampshire farmers.

Under the bill advanced to a third reading, any person who handles milk that is produced under unhealthful conditions may be fined up to $800.

Browning Devotees Perform for Benefit of Unemployed and Women's Peace Party.

To meet the ban of Mayor Curley against bare feet dancing, even in the name of art, stockings were donned in "Balaustion's Euripides," a Greek play, given in the Plymouth Theatre by the Boston Browning Society for the benefit of the unemployed of Boston and the Women's Peace Party.

Miss Ella R. Shull of Brookline appeared in the title role, and the cast included Robert H. Clark, Thomas A. Watson, Paul S. Bliss, Dr. E. Melville Quimby, Daniel Randall, Day Manson and Reginald Coggeshall.

Persic dances added beauty to the spectacle, although many criticized the stockings as incongruous. The young women in special dances included the Misses Doris Goodspeed, Mildred O. Baker, Marguerite Hitchcock, Elvira Rand, Isabelle Klauber, Millicent Melrose, Ruth Rollins, Susan Driscoll, Pauline Allen, Margery Patten, Allison Batchelder, Olga Turner, Gladys Dhlel, Katherine Holmes and Mabel Langley.

Zoe---The Story of a Great Love

Brooke Takes Crawley Down to His Home and the Artist Gets a Surprise

SYNOPSIS.

Noel Crawley, a successful painter, in London has painted the portrait of a beautiful woman whom he knows only as Zoe. She appears after his engagement is announced and tries to kill herself in his studio. Finally she leaves, swearing she will commit suicide the day he marries.

After she goes Crawley has a visit from Godfrey Brooke, traveler, financier and empire builder, just back from Africa. Brooke and he had been good friends when both were poor in Paris. Brooke had married Diana Melhuish, and after a two-years' absence was now on the way to his country house to see the bride he had left. Crawley tells Brooke all about Zoe and of her mad infatuation, adding that he doesn't believe she ever had a husband.

(Copyright, Associated Newspapers, Ltd. Serial rights in U. S. A. held by International News Service.)

(By CORALIE STANTON and HEATH HOSKEN.)

"DON'T suppose there was," agreed Brooke grimly.

"But," continued Crawley, "she swore that her husband was nothing to her. That she had left him for ever. She hated him. She loved me. I did all I could to pacify her; but it was no good. Then I played my last card. I told her about Eva."

Brooke whistled dubiously.

"I couldn't describe it," continued Crawley, in a voice that was husky with excitement. "She was terrible. I went through hell."

"You seem to have had a pretty rough time," said Brooke laconically. "Did you get rid of her?"

"My dear man," exclaimed Crawley, "she stood there just where you are and threatened to kill herself there and then. She had a small phial of prussic acid with her. She said she had sworn to kill herself here in my room if I did not take her away."

"The woman must be mad."

"Mad or sane, she was desperately in earnest, and she would have done it if I hadn't snatched the thing from her and smashed it up. The remains are in that coal scuttle. That seemed to sober her a little, and I did all I could. At last she consented to leave me; I promised all sorts of things, I suppose. The whole thing is like a hideous nightmare; but before she went she swore by everything that was holy that on the day of my marriage with Eva Warren she would kill herself. Those were her last words."

Crawley buried his face in his hands. His nerves had gone all to pieces. Brooke rose and went over to his side and laid his hand affectionately on his friend's shoulder.

"Now, up, old man," he said. "Pull yourself together. She won't do anything of the sort. The woman isn't worth a serious thought. It's all nonsense. You were firm. She'll be sober tomorrow. She won't kill herself. Women don't do that sort of thing—not even for you, Crawley."

"She'll do something, though. If Eva were to know of this!"

BROOKE INSISTS THAT NOEL COME WITH HIM

"Nonsense! How could she? Come, you're not fit to be left alone tonight. You've just got to come down to Hatchington with me. Go in and pack up a few things. Look sharp. We haven't much time. It'll do you a world of good."

"But I couldn't," protested Crawley. "I'm not in a fit state to see anyone."

"You needn't unless you like. There's only Di there. She's the sort to do you good. Come down, Crawley, and get away from all this and all nervousness; come down and see a good, pure woman."

"But I've got to go to Paris tomorrow night."

"Why not? You can come up to town in the morning. I shall be coming up with my wife."

Crawley wavered. "Do you know," he said, "I really think I will. I shall go mad if I stay here alone all night. I can't get that woman out of my mind."

"Then it's settled," laughed Brooke cheerily. "Bling a few things into a bag and come along. We've got to get to Waterloo by 10.15."

* * * * * * *

It was close on midnight when Brooke and Crawley drove into the gates of the Laurels, a fine modern house standing in some splendid grounds on the outskirts of Hatchington, about two miles from Guildford.

"This is a nice time of night to bring a stranger in," Brooke had laughed Crawley. "I expect Mrs. Brooke will bless me. I expect she's in bed and asleep at this time."

"Not she," retorted Brooke. "She'd wait up all night for me, bless her heart."

There was something almost childlike in Godfrey Brooke's love for his wife and his joy at being with her again after his long absence in the wilds of Central Africa. It was a new and unsuspected side of his character to Noel Crawley, who had always regarded Brooke as exempt from every form of sentiment.

A man servant opened the door to them and Brooke ushered Crawley, through a flagged apartment, into a pretty drawing room on the left.

"Where's your mistress?" he asked the servant. "Not gone to bed yet?"

"No, sir," answered the man. "My mistress is in her studio."

"Good. Come in, Crawley, and make yourself at home. Mr. Crawley is the night," he added to the "See after a room for him."

"Very sir."

nced around the pleas- drawing room, with ding and decorations. and pictures and ral effect pleased was essentially a woman's hand was in everything. It was the hand, too, of a woman of taste. He felt instinctively that he should like Mrs. Brooke.

Suddenly his eyes fell on a sketch, a rough sketch in chalk of a woman's head and shoulders. It was lying on a table among a litter of photographs.

He picked it up quickly and stared at it in mute incredulity.

It was a delicate and delightful piece of his own work, an unsigned sketch of a woman with a wealth of hair and large, expressive eyes, which peered out sorrowfully beneath a huge picture hat. It was Zoe.

"Where did you get this?" he asked, and his voice was faint and almost indistinct.

"That?" Oh, that's a sketch of my wife," said Brooke. "I don't know who did it; but it isn't a bit flattering."

"Your wife!" gasped Crawley, and his face was the color of ashes. The sketch fluttered from his nerveless hands to the carpet.

"Yes, but don't judge her from that. You wait till you see her, Crawley. And Brooke turned and walked toward the door. "I'll just go and hurry her up. She'll be down in a minute.

CRAWLEY IN DESPAIR IS UTTERLY AMAZED

For a few dizzy moments Noel Crawley stood and stared dumbly into space. His brain swam in a sea of bewilderment, but bewilderment soon gave way to horror and fear. The position was at first unrealizable. It was unbelievable and too terrible. It was monstrous!

Zoe, his beautiful model, the woman who had sat to him for his "Circe," was the wife of Godfrey Brooke! That was the staggering fact.

He sank hopelessly into a chair.

"Good heavens!" he gasped. "What am I to do?"

A hundred wild thoughts flashed through his brain. He was trying to reason out how this inconceivable thing had been possible, trying to force himself to realize what the thing was and that now he must face the situation.

He bent down and picked up his sketch, and stared at it fiercely. He would like to have torn it to pieces. How well he remembered doing it! It was one of the first of the dozens he had done of her.

And she was coming into this room. They would meet. It was only a matter of seconds. He staggered to his feet and looked wildly around. His action and attitude were those of a hunted criminal. It was as if he sought some means of escape.

What was to be done? A hundred questions hammered for answer on his brain—a hundred possibilities, each fraught with some new danger.

What diabolical trick of Fate was this that had brought him here tonight? Here, of all the places in the world? Did she know who he was? Had she known all the time? How would she meet him? And Brooke—Brooke, to whom she was everything on earth—this wife of his! Did he was he to know? Why, Brooke would kill her, and kill him, too!

What devil the woman was! And what a fool he had been—what a hopelessly purblind fool—not to have burdened his soul to Brooke! Had there ever been such a tragic muddle in the world?

He wiped the moisture from his throbbing brows, and tried to swallow the lump that had risen in his parched and aching throat. He could not think coherently, and, try as he might, he could not conquer the feeling of demoralising fear that gripped him—a fear that bordered on panic.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

Ancient Wireless

In the Juamara region of the Amazon the natives use a crude system of wireless telegraphy, which, it is claimed, has been in operation for thousands of years. The transmitter found by an explorer was a hollowed trunk of a tree suspended from a horizontal pole stretched between two stumps. Inside the transmitter had been arranged much like a violin, and it was explained that when the instrument was struck smartly with a small rubber hammer a vibration was created that carried for miles over the hills. The receiver is very similar to the transmitter, except that it is not suspended from a wood platform, the base of the hollowed tree trunk being grounded on the platform. When the message is struck in the neighboring village, sometimes thirty miles away, this receiver catches the vibrations, causing a jerky singing sound. The sound system, it is said, can be read by the members of the tribe, and in this way news or victories and other happenings are told throughout the countryside.

A Man of Ideas

Have you ever noticed how a lamb, the most timorous of beasts, will become suddenly brave when badly frightened?

Well, that is what young Bingle is like. Bingle is so nervous that it almost amounts to a disease. In fact,

It was at a party the other night, and sat against a wall between two charming girls, twiddling his thumbs round each other in a fever of fright. But it was very annoying.

"Do you always do that at a dance?" asked one of the girls at last, unable to stand it any longer.

"Er—no," stuttered Bingle. "Sometimes"—twiddling his thumbs in the reverse direction—"I do it this way!"

The Bride and Her Bridesmaids

Republished by Special Arrangement with HARPER'S BAZAR, the Oldest and Greatest Woman's Magazine

THE maid of honor, particularly if she be older, may wear a white satin gown, decreed Jeanne Lanvin. The skirt should be short and very full, the corsage simple, a narrow waist ribbon adding a touch of primness. A large flame-tinged yellow rose embroidered on one side gives character.

JEANNE LANVIN makes her ideal wedding-gown of layer upon layer of tulle, shirred very finely to give great fullness to the skirt. The uppermost layer is shot with a very wide but very sheer band of silver embroidery, which also appears on the shirred corsage. Even to the veil it is vaporous.

FOR the little flower girl, Jeanne Lanvin drops over a foundation of petale de roses satin an ecru dotby shirred skirt of white chiffon crossed by narrow bias bands of old blue velvet and studded with pink roses. The waite straw bonnet has a cluster of old blue roses and velvet ribbon streamers.

Famous Dandies in Letters

Well-Known Authors With Fondness for Show

WHEN Benjamin Disraeli, Lord Beaconsfield, first entered Parliament he was known as a brilliant young novelist, and one of the greatest dandies about London.

He wore plum-colored coats, ruby waistcoats, and green trousers, lived to represent his country at Berlin, and to talk to Bismarck with authority. But he never ceased to be a dandy.

Another literary dandy was Bulwer Lytton, afterwards the first Lord Lytton, the author of "The Last Days of Pompeii," "Eugene Aram," and many other novels which enjoyed a wide popularity in their day. He was a tremendous swell, with wonderful Dundreary whiskers and still more wonderful curls all over his head. He always dressed in the height of fashion.

Oliver Goldsmith, when he had a little money, generally spent it upon a bottle of wine, a plum-colored coat, with the usual simplicity.

or the first poor beggar he met. Boswell records that on one occasion he strutted about, "bragging of his dress," and when they laughed he said, "Well, let me tell you, when my tailor brought home my plum-colored coat, he said, 'Sir, I have a favor to beg of you. When anybody asks you who made your clothes, be pleased to mention John Filey, at the Harrow, in Water Lane,' " to which Johnson made the retort, in his usual drastic style, "Why, sir, that was because he knew the strange color would attract crowds to gaze at it, and thus they might hear of him, and see how well he could make a coat even of so absurd a color."

Dickens was always a bit of a dandy. He used to wear a bright green waistcoat, a color of which he was very fond, with a vivid scarlet tie. He once appeared at a famous studio wearing a blue overcoat with red cuffs. In his later days he was fond of velvet coats. Even in evening dress he could never be content with the usual simplicity.

Do You Know That—

Private Harat, of the 237th Territorial Regiment of the French Army, is known as the "human sieve." He was wounded on August 25 at Courpesseaux by the discharge of a German machine gun, and the surgeon who operated on him has already extracted from his left leg alone exactly forty-one bullets. And there are still more in his body.

The streets of Milan are watered from the electric tramcars. On these watering cars reservoirs have been adapted to the platforms and these reservoirs are emptied, as the car runs, by means of perforated tubes placed fan-shaped at the front and the back of the car.

For the payment of salaries in the British royal households the King and Queen use annually $640,000.

As a rule, employes in breweries, tanneries and printing-ink factories are immune from consumption. Turpentine works and rope works are a protection from rheumatism. Workers in copper mines need not fear typhoid.

More than seven and a half million books are lent by London public libraries in a year, the juvenile readers taking considerably over a million.

On the outbreak of the war the Falkland Islands voted a gift to Great Britain of $11,250, equivalent to $5 per inhabitant.

"How I Helped My Husband"

Another Successful Wife Tells How She Did Her Part

By a Successful Wife

WHEN the last link uniting the man of my ideals and myself was forged the poor boy, as he admits he then was, confessed that he was earning only $10 a week, and I had just left a comfortable home.

To have backed out would have meant humiliation to me, for I had packed up what little we had (I did not even think of taking my nicest gowns), and our adventure in life commenced. We rented a little furnished room for three dollars. My husband walked two miles to work each morning. I went to a public school and took up bookkeeping. I taught my husband by night what I had learned—it was some fun, too, for both of us. In two months we had both gotten double entry down to a needle point. The bookkeeper in my husband's place of business left. The next day I had the place at fifteen dollars a week, and the boys wondered how the order clerk had made such quick friendship with the new bookkeeper. They certainly did tease him about it—all the more fun for us.

Soon afterward I told my employer that I needed an assistant. Fred volunteered his services, and his salary was increased five dollars a week, as we had completely charged the books, and I was staying at home keeping house.

A few years later my husband inherited a few thousand dollars from his uncle. We then started a business of his own. Again I went to bookkeeping, and on coming home a was always greeted by the dearest little chubby boy that ever a mother had. My husband failed, we lost all —except our knowledge of books; but that was satisfying enough, for both of us. In about two weeks' time we both had good positions.

We then worked hard and late until we had rehabilitated ourselves. And those who helped understand how thankful I am to them. Unselfishness should be the basis of all marriage.

A Man and His Wife

Isabel Finally Agrees to Have Cocktails Served at the Party

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

THE Hamiltons' first dinner party was to come off on Wednesday. The previous Sunday, as John had leisure in which to chat with his wife, he and she sat together in the parlor after their hearty 1 o'clock dinner and discussed the plans for the coming function.

"All of the guests have accepted," Isabel remarked, glancing at the slip of paper she held in her hand. "You know them all, yet though I met them at Mrs. Simmons' reception I don't remember them well."

"Six people besides ourselves will not be hard to remember," John remarked. "There are Adalaide, Mr. and Mrs. Maitland, Ella Sanger—by the way, she's Mrs. Simmons' cousin, you know—Tom Marsh and Henry Dennis. I could have spared Dennis myself, but you seemed to want him. Now, what about the menu?"

"Well, Jennie and I have talked it over," Isabel said with a little laugh, "and she is so used to serving rather pretentious dinners that she suggested raw clams or oysters, then a soup, some fish, a roast with two vegetables, a salad and a dessert."

"Nothing mean about her!" John echoed his wife's laugh. "Tell, if we want to do things up nicely, what could we spare out of that bill-of-fare and not look mean? You remember that some one says that 'What's worth doing at all is worth doing swell.'"

"We could dispense with the fish," Isabel replied. "Or we could omit the fish, oysters and begin with soup."

"I tell you what—let's have appetizers of caviare or anchovies instead of the oysters," John proposed. "Serve them in the parlor with the cocktails."

"Cocktails!" Isabel repeated the word disapprovingly. "You are not going to serve cocktails at a little home dinner, are you, John?"

"Surely I am," he repeated. "The crowd will want them. They always have them at their dinners.

TROUBLE STARTS OVER THE COCKTAIL QUESTION

"But this is our dinner, not theirs," Isabel objected. "Really, dear, I think we might omit cocktails."

"All people have them," John insisted.

"Indeed they don't," Isabel told him. "The Ferrises didn't."

"Do you mean they had nothing to drink?"

"They had champagne with dinner and a cordial afterward in the drawing room when the coffee had been served," the wife explained. "But they are not rich as we are not. Champagne is far beyond us."

"Of course it is," John agreed, "so we ought to have a good cocktail to make up for the fact that we will only have sherry with the dinner."

Isabel did not mean to be obstinate, but since the night on which John had returned from the club with what he termed "a headache," she had dreaded seeing him take liquor in any form. She had determined never to touch it herself in his presence. Moreover, sherry was not a cheap wine.

"My plan will be best after all," she said slowly, "to serve a light claret during dinner. That's all we can afford, dear."

"Afford!" exclaimed. "I'm not going to have my friends come here and treat them as if they were at a blooming Sunday school picnic. Cut out that fish course and begin with appetizers and cocktails; serve sherry with the dinner and a cordial at the end. Benedictine is good." Isabel's head ached. Yet what could she do? "For pity's sake be a sport!" John urged. "Don't you know it would look if we didn't give these people as good things as they are used to at home? Why, at a place I known downtown, where the bartender is a crackerjack in that line. They'll cost us about one-twenty-five—for we must get a quart. The sherry, too, will be about one-fifty. One bottle ought to be enough, but it's safer to have two. It would be mortifying if it gave out."

He paused as if expecting some comment from his wife, but she made none. "And," he continued, "the Benedictine will cost a dollar and a half. Then I must get some good cigars—but they won't be much over a dollar."

Isabel's face was a shade paler, but she spoke calmly. "That means that drinking and smoking will cost about seven dollars," she observed—"more than all the food, salted nuts and bonbons."

John frowned. "Don't be silly," he begged. "All that liquor won't be used, of course, and there will be some left for our next dinner. The second bottle of sherry may not even be opened. But we must have it here in case it's wanted. Besides," triumphantly, "when you give your dinner for the Ferris bunch you'll be glad if you have a bottle of sherry on hand."

"The Ferris bunch," as you call my friends," she said with dignity, "are not dependent upon much to drink. But as this dinner is for your friends I suppose you know best what they want."

ISABEL HAS ANOTHER THOUGHT ABOUT THINGS

She was rather sorry she had spoken so harshly, she told herself later when John had gone out for a walk and she had retired to her room for her Sunday afternoon nap. During the past few days she had really become interested in the thought of this dinner—had for a while been able to forget much of her animosity toward Adalaide in her desire to help John's affair a success.

And now John himself had made her feel that instead of its being a function given by her and himself, it was a feast at which things of which she disapproved would be served. The guests would drink, they would tell ridiculous stories, they would all laugh too much. And, worst, of all, she was sure that one of those present would criticise the appointments of the little home and wonder how as charming a man as John Hamilton could ever have married such a dull woman as his wife.

The thought stung her pride into action. Springing from the couch on which she had been lying she spoke aloud her swift and sudden determination:

"I'll show her I'm no fool!" she exclaimed. "I'll have the best, no matter what it costs! I thought I was hoping to make this dinner a success to please John. Now I know I am going to do it, if only to spite John Friends!"

A New Zealand Legend

The volcanic phenomena of New Zealand are accounted for in a Maori legend in the following manner:

One of the first chiefs to reach New Zealand from the ancient home in Hawaiki brought with him a trusted follower, Ngauruhoe, with whom he set out to examine the country. When they reached the highest peak they suffered much from cold, and the chief shouted to his sisters on a far distant island to send some of the fire which had been brought in circles from Hawaiki. This fire immediately came in a southwesterly line, subterraneously starting forth on the summit where the chief and his follower stood. Ngauruhoe served in time to save the life of the former, but died of exposure, and whose name is commemorated in the highest peak of the Tongariro Mountains. Geologists say that the fire started to mark the course of the subterranean fissure which now stands in solitary grandeur because by reason of the three giants, quarrelled with the other two, Tongariro and Ruapehu, and had to fly to the coast to escape their wrath.

How to Gain Weight a Pound a Day

This men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with each meal for a few weeks. Here is a good test worth trying. First, weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And, best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Sargol is not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it turns the fats, sugars and starches of what you eat into rich, red blood—this nourishment for the tissues and blood—perhaps is in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol stops the waste and does it quickly and makes the fat producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. Leading druggists in Boston and vicinity sell it in large boxes—forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight increase or money back.

CHILD GETS SICK, CROSS, FEVERISH IF CONSTIPATED

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach or bowels.

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Mothers simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sours.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then, don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." For sale by Rikar-Jaynes and all good druggists.—Advertisement.

SUNDAY SLOWS UP WITH 'MA' AWAY

"Ma" Sunday has gone to the Middle West for two weeks. With her departure the machinery of the Rev. "Billy" Sunday campaign immediately began to run slower. Both meetings lacked that vim, ginger and peppering which have made "Billy" Sunday. Without "Ma" behind him on the platform the evangelist seemed to be a little at sea. Without her beside him he would say but little about his ideas on touring for temperance in England. "Ma" is the wheels of the Sunday campaign. Sunday depends on her without reservation.

Nevertheless there were 127 trail hitters at night, not a particularly large number, compared with other evenings. The collections of the day were $466.67 and $572.45. The total so far is $15,984.92.

Some 2,000 attended the afternoon meeting. The tabernacle was filled at night, 13,000 or more being jammed inside the edifice.

Sunday spoke on "Repentance" at the night session, saying:

"It is said that an elephant will not drink out of clear water, for when he sees his ugly face reflected in it he is stirred to anger and lashes the water in his fury. There must be a good deal of human nature about an elephant.

CAN'T BEAR WICKED HEARTS.

"It is for this reason that so many people do not like the Bible. It makes them see their own wicked hearts and they can't bear that.

"People don't like preaching that goes at them roughshod and finds sore places on them. They want sermons of the 'You tickle me and I'll tickle you' kind, preaching that pats them on the head and makes them feel like a boy with his mouth full of butterscotch. Make a man feel certain that the Lord admires him and you will be a great preacher to him.

"But Jesus Christ was not that kind of a preacher, and neither were any of his disciples, with the exception of Judas. Even to John was thrown into prison and had his head taken off. He opened his Bible right in the middle and cried, 'Repent ye, repent ye, for the kingdom of God is at hand.' He preached plain and took deadly aim at the sinners in the front seats. No wonder he stirred a hornet's nest at once.

"If you hear the preacher say he is not believe in a devil you can a just bet your hat that he has preached on repentance. The men who do any preaching on repentance know there is a devil, for they have heard him roar.

ATTACKS THE PREACHERS.

"If some of the preachers were true to their trust they'd be preaching against some of the miserable old shylocks in their congregations. If they did they'd be thrown out to grass, but it would be a sure thing then that they would be storing up treasures for themselves in Heaven.

"Somebody said to me, 'Billy, you rub them the wrong way.' I don't if the cats turn around.

"It was the keen edge of John the Baptist's preaching that took his own head off.

"I tell you that the man who takes that which does not belong to him is a thief. I don't care what you would call him. The man who deceives his neighbor is a liar.

"Repentance is not fear and yet a great many people have such an altogether-mistaken idea of repentance that they think no one can repent in a way that will please God unless he is first scared almost to death.

"When a man discovers that he is on the wrong train, and he is heading in the wrong direction from that which he should go, he doesn't have to be afraid of an awful wreck to make him leave the wrong train and get on the right one as soon as he can.

"Man does not need to be afraid of hell because he thinks he is going to die. Jesus said there was an endless hell for the lost sinner and he pulled aside the curtain and let us look into that awful pit, but he only did this once and made no attempt whatever to frighten men into being good, for he knew very well that the repentance that comes only through fear lasts only as long as the fear does.

REPENTANCE AND FEAR.

"As soon as the fear is gone the religion is gone. The man who tries to be good only because he was afraid of being damned is no more good in his heart than a lamb in a lion's cage is a lion. The moment you take away the fear of punishment he will be as bad as ever.

"You can't scare people into repentance any more than you can drive the poisonous secretion from a rattlesnake by putting a clothespin on its tail.

"I do not believe in the so-called death-bed repentance. I don't say there may not be genuine cases of death-bed repentance, but they are few. There is only one mentioned in the Bible, only one to my knowledge—the thief on the cross. That was the first opportunity the thief ever had of giving himself to Jesus."

"Billy" Sunday Exposition Day

PATERSON, April 21.—A "Billy Sunday day is being planned by the management of the Panama-Pacific exposition. Word to this effect was received by the evangelist from Professor Moore of the exposition, with the request that he indicate the day preferred. Sunday said he would probably accept and make several addresses at the exposition.

Here is Sunday's tribute to Mrs. Sunday, in his discourse tonight:

"Mrs. Sunday perhaps would not carry off a prize at a beauty show, but she has more good, hard horse sense than any one I ever met. I never went contrary to her judgment that I did not go up against it."

Arraigned for Death of Weymouth Chief

Joseph E. L. Miller, of East Weymouth, was arraigned before Judge Avery in the Quincy District Court today charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Police Chief Patrick Butler, of Weymouth, the night of April 15. It is charged Miller ran down and killed Butler while operating an auto under the influence of liquor. His case was continued until April 28 for trial. Bonds were placed at $1,000.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks opened strong and with markets active. Transactions on the Boston exchange yesterday aggregated the most in three years, totaling 119,377 shares. When trading was resumed in New York today business was well distributed and railroads and coppers were prominent. Rock Island was weak and active. It is reported from London that American securities had a good tone there and that the Rock Island receivership had little bear influence.

Early gains in New York included Amalgamated ⅝, American Smelting ⅝, Atchison ¾, Baltimore & Ohio ¾, Canadian Pacific 1¼, Chesapeake & Ohio 1⅜, Chino ¾, Lehigh Valley ¾, Missouri Pacific ¼, New York Central ⅞, Reading ¾, Southern Pacific ⅝, St. Paul ⅜, Union Pacific ⅝, U. S. Steel ¾, Utah Copper 2⅜, Bethlehem Steel 5½, American Locomotive ¾, Goodrich ¾, Maxwell Motor 1½, Mexican Petroleum ¾, Studebaker ½, Westinghouse ⅝ and U. S. Rubber 1. Rock Island was off 2⅛, General Motors ⅛ and American Can ⅛.

Among advances in Boston were: Alaska Gold ⅜, Allouez 1¾, Boston & Maine ½, Butte & Superior 1½, Calumet & Arizona 2, Copper Range 1, Greene-Cananea ½, North Butte 1, Superior ⅝, Mohawk 1½, Lake ⅜, Tamarack 1 and United Fruit ½.

There was a wide opening in Arancons in New York, the first sales being recorded as 2,000 shares at 28 to 28¾, against 27¾ at the close yesterday. The sharp advance at the start in railroads was followed by enough offerings to cause recessions. There was a strong disposition among traders to take profits.

BALANCE OF TRADE.

It is reported at Washington that the balance of trade in favor of the United States for the week ended Saturday last was $13,834,687. These are Department of Commerce figures and based upon reports from thirteen principal customs districts. Exports from New York city last week totalled $28,585,285, an increase of $4,322,074, compared with the corresponding 1914 week. Yesterday was a big day for foreign shipments there, exports totalling $6,818,766, an increase of $2,856,129 compared with the same day the week previous.

BIG SALES OF COPPER.

The copper metal market continues active, and a New York dispatch says: "It can be stated officially that one of the largest copper producing companies is now quoting copper for domestic delivery at 17¾ cents, and large sales have been made for foreign account which net this company 18 cents f. o. b. New York."

In regard to Lake Copper, it is said that sales at 21 cents a pound have been made.

ROCK ISLAND FINANCING.

A local financial publication says: "With the appointment of receivers for the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company, its stockholders have presented to them with out qualification their obligation to provide a plan of financing the property. So far as can be seen at present that means an assessment of from $20 to $40 a share. The former figure would bring in $22,500,000 cash; the second would produce $30,000,000. There is no doubt that so far as the rehabilitation of the property goes many of the interests concerned would prefer to see the assessment fixed at $40."

'Movies' Knocking at Brookline Door

A public hearing will be given by the Brookline selectmen tonight on the question of allowing moving-picture theatres to operate on a commercial basis in that town hereafter.

Up to the present all applicants for a moving-picture license have been granted "leave to withdraw." The town now has but one full-fledged film theatre. This is operated by the Brookline Friendly Society and its profits are devoted to charity.

Two applications for licenses are now before the selectmen. Whether or not these are granted, and Brookline's ban on the "movies" thus lifted, depends upon the result of tonight's hearing.

Canterbury, Ct., Fire Sweeps 3,500 Acres

PLAINFIELD, Ct., April 21.—The worst forest fire ever known in Canterbury has swept over a four-mile square of timber, wood and sprout land. Help from several towns was called and the fire was controlled after burning over more than 3,500 acres.

M'LeansQuitNewport for Virginia Estate

NEWPORT, April 21.—Edward B. McLean of Washington, whose wife is the possessor of the famous Hope diamond and mother of one of America's richest babies, who had planned to take up a large country estate in Newport County, has decided to quit Rhode Island for Virginia. Their belongings are ready for shipment to Washington. It is said the McLeans have leased or bought an estate in Virginia. They have occupied the Reginald Norman farm in Portsmouth two years.

Just Us Girls Dance Tonight.

The "Just Us Girls" of South Boston and Roxbury will hold their third annual dance in Bethesda Hall, South Boston, tonight. The committee in charge comprises Miss Mae Hourihan, Miss Idolle Kenny, Miss Bertha Bonner, Miss Lulu Hourihan, Miss Gertrude Kelley, Miss Irene Irving, Miss Julia Barry and Miss Madeline Golding.

CHARGE WOMEN BOUGHT VOTES

CHICAGO, April 21.—The elections in Illinois yesterday were featured by the candidacy of several women for office, also by an election scandal, it developed today. Mrs. A. R. Canfield, aged seventy-four, was elected Mayor of Warren, Ill., the first woman to be chosen as the Executive of an Illinois city, and Miss Pauline Weidner was elected City Treasurer of Mendota.

Illinois "drys" captured eleven "wet" towns in option elections, according to returns completed today. Women voters cast the deciding ballots in nearly every municipality where the expulsion of the saloons was the issue. The "wet" forces in every town were on the defensive and managed to retain twelve towns and cities.

An election scandal was brought to light in Paris, Ill., where it was charged women sold their votes for 25 apiece. Miss Hattie O'Neil and C. Clay Moss, a Democratic leader, were arrested, charged with buying women's votes. Other arrests were promised today. Sheriff McAllister admitted that several warrants had been issued, one of them naming a prominent society woman.

The alleged traffic in women's votes was disclosed when Mrs. Flora Dawson and Miss Hattie Franklin appeared at the sheriff's office and admitted that they had received $3 each from Miss O'Neil and Moss.

The hottest fight over the saloon issue was waged in Granville, which was voted "dry" by 650 votes. The women there voted solidly against the saloons. One of the notable results of the elections was the expulsion of saloons from three Chicago suburbs, Naperville, Lombard and West Chicago. Elmhurst, another suburb, voted to retain its saloons.

Ottawa, the largest city in Lasalle county, was voted "wet" after a bitter campaign had been waged on both sides.

One surprise of the election was the success of the entire Voliva ticket, headed by W. H. Clendenin for Mayor of Zion City. In West Hammond Paul Kamradi, a saloon keeper, was elected Mayor over Martin F. Pinneran.

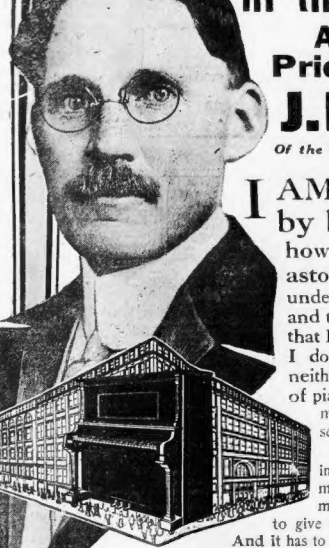
Let Me Explain My Position In the Piano Business

And Why My Prices Are So Low

J. P. Collins

Of the Roxbury Piano Storage Salesroom Company



I AM asked every day by big business men how I can afford to sell pianos at such astonishingly low prices—some are under the impression that I manufacture pianos, and that I have some special piano of my own that I am pushing on the market. I do not manufacture pianos—neither do I push any special make of piano—I am no manufacturer's man—neither am I interested in selling any particular piano.

I play no favorites. I go out into the open piano market with my cash and buy any and all makes that I can buy low enough to give my customers a great bargain. And it has to be a great bargain. My business would not last a month if I did not give great bargains. People would not come out here unless they got a far better bargain than the other piano dealers give them. I probably have the biggest exhibit of the different makes for the people's selection. I, no doubt, sell more pianos than any retail dealer in this city. During my business career I have sold miles of pianos. Just think of it—miles of pianos. I do such a big business in pianos because I sell the best at always the lowest prices.

BISHOP LAWRENCE RAPS ARMY RULE

Bishop Lawrence scored militarism today in his sermon at the 130th annual convention of Episcopalians in St. Paul's Cathedral, and said America must not be too severe upon another country in the matter of breaking of treaties.

"What have we done?" asked the bishop. "We occupy a country wrested by force, and sometimes by perfidy and the breaking of treaties, from its original inhabitants. We have an uncomfortable problem to the south of us. We have no conception of the temper, traditions and attitude of mind of the nations of Europe. Who knows how much of our vaunted love of peace is due to our character and temper, how much to our protected position?

"Any effort towards immediate peace by the representatives of this country would seem to me not only futile but likely to weaken such influence as we may have after the war.

"We must do everything in our power to assuage the suffering of the wounded, to relieve the distress of the homeless and to act as brother to brother.

"About the matter of defence and armament, we all have a duty to see that the money spent by this nation for defence and armament is well spent; that we get our money's worth. We may well be careful how that interest may lead us on to an increase of force and expenditure.

"I personally would as lief have this country overrun by every nation of the earth as to have it under the bondage of militarism; for I have such confidence in the people and democracy that I believe in time this people would rise up through conquering peoples and with them create a great nation.

"Militarism is essentially autocracy. It cannot live in the same people with democracy.

"We must prepare public opinion for the establishment of courts for judicial decision of international controversies.

"There must be an international police force strong enough to enforce the decisions. We must cultivate the temper of the people.

"This present war is not a war of Christian nations. It is a war of nations that have partially caught the spirit of Christ. We must have the mind of Christ in international affairs."

The bishop then discussed the lessons of the present war and how it had brought about a change in the matter of intemperance.

"The radical cure of intemperance," continued the bishop, "is not through legislation, but through self-control and habits of temperance for one's own sake, the sake of others and of the nation."

Asks Divorce from Dr. Seth F. Arnold

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to flush kidneys if bladder bothers you.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.—Advertisement.

NO DOUBT THAT RESINOL DOES HEAL SICK SKIN

When you know physicians have prescribed Resinol for 20 years in the treatment of eczema and other itching, burning, unsightly skin eruptions, and have written thousands of reports saying: "It is my regular prescription for itching," "Resinol has produced brilliant results." "The result it gave was marvelous in one of the worst cases of eczema," etc., etc., doesn't it make you feel that "this is the treatment I can rely on for MY skin-trouble?"

The moment Resinol Ointment touches itching skins, the itching stops and healing begins. With the aid of Resinol Soap, it almost always clears away every trace of eczema, ringworm, pimples, or other tormenting eruption quickly, leaving the skin clear and healthy. Sold by all druggists. DIVERS ENGAGED IN WORK OF RAISING THE SUNKEN SUBMARINE F-4.

CRILLEY TELLS OF GREAT F-4 DIVE

HONOLULU, April 21.—"I never dived under such splendid conditions or in such wonderful water as here at Honolulu," said Frank Crilley, U. S. N., chief gunners' mate, one of the expert divers sent from the Brooklyn Navy Yard to aid in raising the submarine F-4, sunk in the harbor here on April 14, with more than twenty men.

"On the east coast the water is dark, sometimes so black you have to feel your way, and the bottom is muddy, but going down into this beautiful water is like passing through a wonderful picture.

"I knew I was going to get down to the F-4, because, off Race Rock, Drellishak went down 274 feet, and if he could do that I knew I could go 300 or better here, and so could any of the boys.

"I got on the cable and went down without any trouble. As soon as I got twenty-five or thirty-five feet down I could see the bottom.

"The beach slopes up at a considerable angle, and right there lies the F-4 on her side, her bow toward the shore. The water was so clear I could see her full length.

"It was clear enough and light enough down there to take pictures if there were any way of getting a camera down in an open chamber.

"When you look up, the water is a light green, but when you look down it is a deep clear blue. There are no weeds down there, no vegetation, no fish, nothing but white sand like the slope of a hill.

"The cable I was on led under the F-4's stern. I worked around until I could get on top of her. The divers who followed me went down on other cables and were able to land square on top of the submarine.

"I got an idea of the lay of the lines and so on, and then went up again, glad to know that at least we had reached the F-4, and would soon be raising her.

"Nobody but a medical man can tell just how deep a diver can go here, but I am sure I can make 500 feet in these waters.

"What I did any of the boys can do. Every man is anxious to do his duty and take his turn. I merely happened to be called on to make the first descent and to go deeper than the others because I went clear to the bottom, while the others landed on the submarine, at about eighteen feet less depth.

"The deepest I ever went before was about 136 feet. I have been diving since 1905, some of the time in very cold water, on the other coast.

WILSON URGED TO KEEP PULSIFER

Lawrence N. Quirk of Natick, former chairman of the Democratic town committee, has written to President Wilson urging the renomination of Postmaster Llewellyn E. Pulsifer and criticising the candidacies of a dozen Natick Democrats who are mentioned for the $2,700 position.

Postmaster Pulsifer's commission expires July 25. He has been notified by the first assistant postmaster general that his resignation would be accepted. But Mr. Pulsifer declares there are no charges against him and that he will serve out his term.

THREE CAPTURED AT POINT OF GUN

Three youths, one armed with a loaded revolver, were captured single-handed at the point of a revolver by Patrolman James H. Corbett of Norwood while burglarizing the Winslow station on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, in Norwood, early today.

Under cover of the officer's revolver they were marched, single file, one mile down a lonely road to the Norwood police station.

The prisoners gave their names as Henry Dowd, twenty-two, of Chelmsford; James Ryan, twenty-three, of 37 Second street, Lowell, and William Day, eighteen, of Orleans street, Chicago.

When arraigned before Judge Grover in the Dedham District Court the youths, all of whom were charged with breaking and entering, were held in $500 bonds each for trial April 28. On an additional charge of carrying a loaded revolver Ryan was found guilty and given three months in jail. He appealed.

Flush Your Blood Get it Cleansed

Remarkable Remedy That Works All Through Your Body.

When you put a tablespoonful of S. S. S. into your stomach it gets straight into your blood. In less than five minutes it has become a wave of restorative influence wherever the blood has circulated. Does this read like magic? But it is absolutely true. Those powerful digestive Juices in the stomach can not change the medicinal effect of S. S. S. The liver can not burn it. The lungs, skin and kidneys excrete it only after S. S. S. has set in motion millions of cells and nerves to throw off the countless germs that have infested every part of the body. And as S. S. S. continues to battle those troublesome pests that gather in the form of pimples, boils, eczema, acne, catarrh, rheumatism and other so-called blood disorders, it rouses into action a myriad of strange but well-understood corpuscles called leucocytes that actually devour or change or convert disease germs so they are readily and quickly cast out of the body. It is probably the best appreciated blood medicine known. You will find S. S. S. on sale in nearly every drug store in the U. S. Get a bottle today. And if your case is peculiar, write to the Medical Department, The Swift Specific Co., 165 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. It is conducted by a noted physician.

OFFICIAL REPORT ON ASYLUM DEATH

An official report filed today with the State Board of Insanity attributes the cause of death of Simon H. Yeaw, aged forty-two, the patient at Worcester State Hospital, to heart disease, "severe burns of the feet," and to a poisonous formation in the main arteries of the legs.

"Either one of the three causes assigned in this report could be the result of the scalding which the patient is said to have received on the night of April 4," said Dr. Michael J. O'Meara, chairman of the State Board of Insanity.

The causes of death were submitted to the State board in a report by Dr. Ernest V. Scribner, superintendent of the hospital. The report followed an autopsy performed by Medical Examiner Frederick H. Baker.

Dr. Scribner adds in his report that "the District Attorney's office has been supplied with complete information in this case."

Yeaw died Monday as the result of burns and scalds sustained while a bath was being administered him by an attendant on the night of April 4. He was horribly scalded by hot water. A report filed with the State Board of Insanity says the hot water was turned on "by mistake."

The same report says that Night Attendant John H. Anderson, who was bathing patient Yeaw, was responsible for the accident and that he has been discharged from the hospital.

Dr. O'Meara today directed Dr. Scribner to notify him at once why the matter was not turned over to the police for criminal investigation before Anderson was discharged.

Dr. O'Meara said of the injuries that heart disease could have resulted from the shock of the accident and that the poisonous formation was undoubtedly the direct effect of the burns and scalds.

GET BUSY AND WIN TRIP TO FAIR

Don't you think it's worth a little of your time and a share of your effort to win one of the twenty-five splendid trips to California which the Boston AMERICAN is offering its readers.

Make the effort. "Faint heart ne'er won fair lady," and lack of attempt will never bring you results in anything. You've got to draw your breath even to keep alive. Nothing is achieved by doing nothing.

So get busy TODAY. If you are not directly interested in the contest, why not help out somebody who is by saving the vote coupons which appear in the AMERICAN, daily and Sunday and turn them over to your favorite candidate? Then get five or ten other friends of yours to help your favorite in this way. You will be performing an act of brotherly love for which you will be none the worse.

'GUNBOAT' SMITH SCORES CLEAN CUT VICTORY OVER M'CARTY AT ATLAS CLUB

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

HEINIE WAGNER'S BAT PLAYS PROMINENT PART IN RED SOX TRIUMPH AT WASHINGTON

SMITH DEFEATS M'CARTY EASILY

By JACK CONWAY.

"GUNBOAT" SMITH, who was rated as the best of the white heavyweights a couple of years ago, is still able to score with a healthy punch with each hand. The gunner is today parading around the pugilistic highways telling his friends about his victory over Tom McCarty of Montana at the Atlas A. A. last night.

Be it known that the noble "Gunboat" and the young man from the West engaged in a twelve-round skirmish at the Arena and that Referee Phil Bowers (Young Donahue) awarded the decision to Smith. The latter had the best of the going in every round and was entitled to the decision. There were a few "fans" who believed that McCarty should have been given a draw because he proved a good punching bag, but we do not know of any boxing rule which makes it necessary for a referee to favor a glove wielder merely because he was game.

The bout was rather slow, but when Smith started shooting his left and right smashes at McCarty things became interesting.

"GUNBOAT" came near ending the whirl in the eighth frame. He scored with a deadly left-hand punch to McCarty's jaw and followed with a right-hand smash to the same spot. The cowboy dropped to the canvas and took the count of nine. He was in poor condition when he regained his feet. Smith had an excellent opportunity to end the tussle with one well directed blow, but he was slow in delivering his punches and consequently McCarty was able to last out the session.

Smith also landed some sweet broadsides in the tenth frame, but McCarty seemed to be immune to punishment and breezed through the stanza without going to the mat.

STUART DONNELLY of Indianapolis defeated Charley Beyers on a foul in the semi-final. Beyers had Donnelly virtually knocked out in the second chapter. He sent him to the canvas with a couple of wicked left and right-hand blows. In his excitement to stop his opponent, Beyers hit Donnelly when he was down and was immediately disqualified.

Howard McRae won from Jimmy Gray in a six-round bout, while Jimmy Flynn defeated Joe Trainor in another six-round affair.

THERE will not be a bout in New York tonight between Sam Langford and Sam McVey, Joe Woodman, Langford's manager, and George Lawrence, who manages McVey, were both at the Arena last night and they declared that the dusky heavyweights were not matched to clash in Gotham this week.

Woodman stated that there was nothing the matter about the bout between Langford and "Porky" Flynn in Montreal the other night. He said:

"Langford and Flynn were secured by the Montreal promoter to merely box an exhibition. It was not to be a real fight. Therefore they naturally did not try to knock each other out. I thought they were boxing very well but the referee stopped them out of the ring.

"I am not managing Flynn although I was instrumental in getting him the engagement in Montreal. 'Porky' is a free agent and is ready to perform for any man who is able to get him to work. I have done business for him in the past and will probably get him much more work in the future."

FREDDY WELSH, the lightweight champion, and Gilbert Gallant of Chelsea will clash in the feature bout of twelve rounds at the Arena next week as was announced in this column several days ago.

Frank Moran Will Meet Dick Smith

LONDON, April 21.—Frank Moran, the Pittsburgh heavyweight, has been matched with Dick Smith, the English heavyweight, for a twenty-round contest for purse of $2,000, to be held in London next month. Bandsman Rice, Gordon Simms and Herbert Hall have all issued challenges to Moran, and the latter has stated his willingness to accommodate them in order.

HARVARD ENTERS 15 IN PENN RELAY

Harvard's entries in the University of Pennsylvania relay games, to be held in Philadelphia on Friday and Saturday of this week, will leave for the site of the meet Thursday morning. There will be fifteen in the party, including Coach William F. Donovan, Manager James Greenough and Masseur Joseph Smith. The athletes entrained will be: Alick Biddle and Rod Tower, both Philadelphians, Captain Frank Capper, R. D. Campbell, Tom Pennypacker, Eddie Teschner, Jay Camp, Morris Greeley, George Haydock, Oliver Johnstone and Harry Sturgis. Westmore Willcox will desert the baseball squad following the Annapolis game and travel to Philly, while Warner Kent, the miler, will come over from New York.

The drawings in all the relays have been made. Harvard won the pole in the sprint medley; two places away from it in the longer medley, and fifth from the pole in the mile and two-mile relays.

Coach Donovan is not certain in what order he will run his charges in the four relays, but is now busily engaged in teaching them the art of correctly passing the baton, which is one of the essential points absolutely necessary in up to date relay racing.

A set of time trials are about due and will probably be held this afternoon on Soldiers Field. But one member of the classy field of quarter and half-milers at Harvard seems under the weather and today will probably determine if Bill Bingham, in condition probably the fastest 440 man in the array, will be enrolled in the Elowtown invading forces.

Bingham was taken ill three weeks ago and after a rest down home reported again last week. His illness apparently has taxed his great speed for he has been decidedly off form since his return. If he shows nothing today, the Lawrence wonder will probably sidestep the Philadelphia jaunt, for Donovan seeks to conserve every available ounce of his athletic strength for the big outdoor dual meets of next month.

CINCINNATI, April 21.—Gonzales, the Cuban catcher, was traded by the Cincinnati Nationals to the St. Louis Cardinals for Ivy Wingo, who was snatched back from the Federals. Part cash was also given by the Cincinnati club.

WILLARD'S LIFE STORY

Miller Gave Him His Hardest Fight

AS TOLD BY HIMSELF

By ED W. SMITH.
Well Known Light Referee and Ring Expert.

Herewith is presented the eighth instalment of Jess Willard's story of his own life, "How I Won the Championship." The first instalment appeared in the AMERICAN of Tuesday, April 15.

His story covers the Kansas Giant's private and ring life completely from his birth up to and including the now famous Havana battle.

HOW I WON THE TITLE—NO. 8.

As told by Jess Willard, heavyweight boxing champion of the world.

One of the most natural questions that come to me from different people all over the country is in regard to the hardest fight that I ever had. This is a difficult question to answer and one that has to be answered in a different way from the ordinary question.

Of course, we will except the Jack Johnson fight from all of these calculations and deductions because that was a real championship affair and so different from the others that no comparisons can be instituted.

Off-hand I would say that Charley Miller, the Western heavyweight fighter, gave me the hardest battle I ever was in and ever expect to be in.

Now I won't say that Miller was one of the best men I ever met, and again I am not going to belittle him in any way. He was a good man at the time I fought him.

Did Not Train for Short Distance Go.

But what made the whole thing a sorry mess for me was the fact that I went into the contest without the proper preparation. It took place about five weeks after my affair of twenty rounds with Gunboat Smith out on the Pacific Coast.

I was completely fooled by this bout. They told me it was to be only four rounds, so I decided at once that it would not be at all necessary to train myself for the affair. Twelve minutes of boxing seemed so easy to me that after I got to thinking about it for a time I decided that I did not need any special preparation at all for the thing.

How greatly I was mistaken in the matter was made plain to me before I had been in action with Miller for a couple of minutes. Miller rushed me around the ring as if I was the cheapest novice in the game. And to make matters worse I played right into his hands by slugging away with him, hoping to win with a knockout in quick style and thus save myself from getting too tired.

Taught Him the Real Value of Condition.

Well, I knocked him dead a couple of times, but could not hit him square on the jaw. He simply would not stay down, and in the third round I was so tired I could scarcely get out of my chair.

That fight was a complete revelation to me and taught me then and there the value of condition at all times whether the fight be of one or four or ten, twenty or forty-five rounds.

They called the fight a draw at the end of the fourth round and I can truthfully say right now that I was glad to hear anything in the world as the sound of that final gong.

It was with difficulty that I dragged myself to the corner at the finish and all I could gasp out to Tom Jones in my corner was something about never again. It was a lucky thing for me that it was Miller that night instead of a little better man. Had I been pitted with some accurate hitter, there's no telling what might have happened to me.

Dan Dailey Gave Him Desperate Argument.

Dan Dailey, the big German heavyweight, gave me a desperate argument, too—although I was in shape for him. From the fourth to the ninth round he kept coming at me in the most vicious fashion and though I kept knocking him to the floor, I could not score a home run.

Dailey would have been a wonderful man but for the fact that his feet and ankles were so peculiarly built that he could not spring from his feet. He acted all the time as if nailed to the floor. It was a fatal defect.

BAKER TO REJOIN ATHLETICS HERE

"Home Run" Baker has come out of retirement. He will rejoin the Philadelphia Athletics here tomorrow, and on the same day will play his first game of the season against the Red Sox.

President Lannin of the Red Sox, who, with many other big league magnates, had been angling for the famous slugger, expressed no surprise when informed that Baker would return to the Athletics' lineup.

"If they say in Philadelphia," said Lanning, "that Baker is going to play, I am pretty sure it is true. I know that Mack was talking business with him while we were playing over there, and I was pretty sure that matters had just been about settled between the pair of them. Mack told me that if Baker played baseball at all, he would play with the Athletics. I sure would have liked to have him for the Red Sox, but after talking with the Athletic leader, gave up any hope of getting him."

$10,000 Stallion Sells for $800

MIDDLEBURY, Vt., April 21.—The famous Morgan horses, owned by the late Joseph Battell, have been sold at auction for remarkably low prices. Scotland, with a national reputation as a brood stallion, for which Battell has been offered $10,000 within a few months, was sold at $800. C. C. Brown of Portland, Me., was the purchaser.

Robert Bruce, another well-known horse, was bought for $455 by C. A. Stone of Boston, who also secured Green Mountain for $405.

Beauty was sold to W. S. Todd of New York for $300, and Dr. Crane of Rutland purchased Highland Lad for $280. Most of the gelding and brood mares were bid in locally. A total of $8,000 was realized.

Gardner Back in Sox Line-up Tomorrow

Third Baseman Larry Gardner will return to the Red Sox line-up at Fenway Park tomorrow. Gardner left the team right after its last game in Philadelphia because of a severe strain in the groin. The injured member is well again.

Fabre Hopes to Win Big B. A. A. Race 3 Times

Edouard Fabre of Montreal, winner of the B. A. A. Marathon race on Patriots' Day, will call upon Governor Walsh today and will leave for his home tonight. The great French-Canadian runner has been lionized by his friends here since his wonderful victory.

"I will be back next year to win the big B. A. A. Marathon again," said Fabre today. "The Boston race is the greatest of all, and now that I have shaken the hoodoo that followed me for four years and I know that I can win, I want to gain the distinction of winning it three years in succession."

Walter J. Bell and Edmond Martineau, also from Montreal, both declared that they also would be back again next Spring.

A movement has been started among the members of the Dorchester Club to raise a fund to send Cliff Horne, who was second in the Vulcorn classic, to the California Marathon.

Harvard Makes Clean Sweep of Net Match

"Buck" O'Brien May Play with Grays

PROVIDENCE, April 21.—"Buck" O'Brien, the Red Sox pitcher in 1912, will be given a tryout with the Grays. O'Brien has asked Manager Shean for a contract but "Buck" will have to make good first before he is signed. O'Brien will start practice with the squad this afternoon and states that he will come back to his old-time form.

SHORE EAGER TO FACE SENATORS

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 21.—The final game of the series between the Red Sox and Senators today will be started at 3 o'clock, a half hour ahead of time, to allow the teams a good margin to catch the 5:30 train, as visitors going home for the opening tomorrow with the Athletics, while the locals go to New York for the inaugural of Colonel Ruppert's Yankees at the Polo Grounds.

Manager Carrigan said this morning that he expected to be in first place before nightfall, and that the indications received from home assured a big turnout for the Red Sox's inauguration of the 1915 season.

From the way Bill Donovan is carrying along the Yankees in Philadelphia and down here, his team is surely cutting a nice record, and tomorrow at the Polo grounds, so that "Girl" and his crew will play to standing room only.

Pitcher Mays is getting along splendidly with his strained instep and bruised knee, the result of his run in at the plate with Catcher Bill Meinmith in Monday's game.

Mays gave indication of being a very good twirler and Manager Carrigan is deploring the accident that weakened his none too strong pitching staff.

Trainer Green works on Mays three times a day and has assured Carrigan that he will have the twirler fit to resume work by the first of next week.

For the final game of the series this afternoon, Manager Carrigan will probably go through with his program intended for yesterday, pitching Ruth, although lefthanders have little terror for the local batsmen. The fact may dawn on Carrigan before the game starts this afternoon and the local "Yank" may be given another opportunity to take a look at the tall, but effective Shore. Shore is somewhat "het up" over the fact that he is charged with using the emery ball and is anxious to get back at his critics.

Manager Griffith may also back water and use his announced selection, for yesterday, Joe Engel, but there is no telling until the very last minute. Both Carrigan and Griffith since he take delight in steering the newspaper men wrong on their selections for the mound each day.

Several New York papers mussed quite a stir here last night in wiring their correspondents to find out why the Boston newspaper men were leaving the Red Sox and going home. One paper wired that Manager Carrigan had had a falling out with several of the correspondents and that they had told the situation to their papers over the wires and been recalled.

George Chalmers Rejoins Phillies

NEW YORK, April 21.—George Chalmers has signed a new contract with the Philadelphia National League club, after receiving his unconditional release last Winter from that club, of which he had been a member for four years.

Chalmers took his training trip with the New York Nationals this Spring, and from his pitching in the training camp he believes he has recovered his efficiency. Manager McGraw was unable to sign Chalmers because of the twenty-one player limit, and permitted him to return to the Phillies. In 1911, Chalmers broke into the National League with Alexander, and the pair nearly pitched Philadelphia into a pennant, injuries ultimately putting the club out of the race. Since then Chalmers has only shown flashes of his former ability.

Billiard Matinee for Out-of-Town 'Fans'

Owing to the great interest being displayed in the New England three-cushion championship series at the Imperial Room, a game will be played this afternoon between Gilliesle and Hudson to give the out-of-town followers of this style of play an opportunity of witnessing one of these matches. The night game will bring together Ammidon and Carroll. Last evening's game resulted in a win for Carroll over Manuel, fifty points to forty-three.

N. E. League Meeting.

A special meeting of the New England League has been called by President T. H. Murnane for tomorrow morning at the Quincy House.

BRAVES START ON TRIP TONIGHT

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

In the wind-up game between the Braves and Brooklyns today several things might happen. It is even possible, though extremely unlikely, that the Brooklynes might win the game. This possibility is only worth a passing thought, however. A team that has had the chances to defeat the Braves in every game played, except the morning game of Monday, and has fallen down so dismally, cannot be reckoned as one to fear.

Of course the Braves will keep plugging along, play a tight defence as they did yesterday, slug the ball at the proper time, as they did yesterday, and try in every possible manner to put over another victory.

Victories count just as much against the lowly teams as against the topnotchers. There is to be no letup on the part of Stallings' men.

THE RABBIT'S SORE THUMB.

Now the Rabbit ought to be on the bench instead of playing ball. He has a very sore thumb. He hurt it in practice Monday morning and Stallings had to put a couple of dislocated joints in place at the time. Yesterday the thumb bothered the little fellow so much that Stallings sent Ted Cather out to short field for preliminary practice. He was going to play the sub in Maranville's place, but the game little fellow put up such a "holler" that finally Stallings allowed him to play.

That shows that the Braves are unwilling to let up in any way even though they are crippled.

WILL CRUTCHER WORK?

As to pitchers for today's battle. No manager cares to tip his hand and neither Stallings nor Robinson will say in advance which pitcher they intend to send to the firing line. Even if they were sure in their own mind (which they seldom are) they do not want their decision known to the other fellows until the last moment. It is sometimes possible, however, to make a good guess though often the guesses are poor. If Georges Tyler is not yet ready little Dick Crutcher, who pitched a winning game against the Dodgers on Saturday, may be sent back for another. Why not? He showed good form in his other start and besides was quite effective last season against this same team.

LAST GAME FOR THE BRAVES.

It is possible that Atchison may pitch for Brooklyn. He did good work against them last season, particularly early in the year. He was only used past of the tenth inning yesterday.

Today's game will be the last the Braves will play in Boston for two weeks. Tonight they will start on a little trip to New York, Brooklyn and Philadelphia and will not return until May 6. In the meantime the Red Sox will hold the Fenway Park fort, opening tomorrow with the Athletics, their old rivals.

Unusual Events in Harvard-Tech Meet

Ten events are scheduled for the practice meet between Harvard and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which takes place this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in Harvard's big Stadium. Several of the contests listed are out of the ordinary run of track events. There is the 50-yard hurdles, the preliminaries of which is the first event of the afternoon. The 100-yard dash is recognized in the best of athletic society as a prize cup entry, but the third event the ¾-mile and the fifth running entry the one and one-half mile run are rather unusual.

"The Rabbit's" Column By Walter J. Maranville SHORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

Some difference between what the Braves are doing now and what they were doing a year ago, hey? Last year at the start the Brooklyns put it all over us and we couldn't seem to win a game from them. It galled us mightily at the time for all of us felt we thought we had the better team. To see the other fellows win game after game was enough to try the patience of Job. It certainly got our goat, for it was not until a long time later that we really got started.

But what we are doing to the Dodgers this year! Four games have been played in the series thus far and the Braves have won all four games. In three of these games we have been without the services of Johnnie Evers, but I must repeat that Fitzpatrick is filling in in great shape. He is great to have batting in second place. Yesterday he got on twice, besides laying down a sacrifice when it was wanted. In the field he handled everything perfectly, which is more than I can say for myself as I let a grounder go through me.

We have caught five Brooklyn players off the bases since they have been here. This is quite a record. Yesterday Gowdy whipped the ball to first, catching Joe Schultz off the bag by his quick throw. Joe had just singled and there was none out at the time.

In the tenth inning, when Brooklyn looked very dangerous with men on first and third, Hughes caught Cutshaw off the bag and closed the inning without being scored upon.

Things like these save many a game of ball.

In his first game Pennock, of the Athletics, held the Red Sox to one scratch hit. Next time out he faced the New Yorks and they peppered him for thirteen bingles. Such is life in baseball. Can you beat it?

* * *

The New York Sun says that the only weakening effort on the Braves when one of their stars gets hurt is to play all the harder. It is a fact.

An old-time baseball friend of the Giants offers the following reasonable explanation of the shortcomings of McGraw's team: "Mac, I am sure, under ordinary circumstances never would stand for present conditions," said he, "but he has absolutely no redress for his hands are tied. The very worst blow that was handed McGraw's ambitions for a pennant this year came from the club presidents of the National League. When they legislated that each club would be permitted to carry no more than twenty-one men after May 1, they robbed him of practically every chance he had to replace the wearing cogs of his machine.

"In the excitement of war times, a great many players who have begun to slip were loaded onto the club through long term contracts. These absolutely cannot be dispensed with. Wherefore McGraw was unable to retain the flower of the recruits that accompanied him to Marlin. He couldn't make room for the youngsters because the aging veterans were tied around his neck.

* * *

"It does not strike me that any lack of spirit is evidenced in the Giant ranks," he continued. "The men appear to be trying just as hard as ever. But you must remember a lot of them have slowed up from age. Even when he won pennants a few years back McGraw did it more from sheer speed than hitting ability.

* * *

"Speed made average hitting go the limit. Mac never had a bunch of sluggers like the old Athletics. Now the fellows who were tearing the base paths wide open three years ago are just about a step slower between bases. That one step represents the difference between a major star and a fair minor leaguer."

WORCESTER NIGHT FOR BOWLING FANS

Another evidence of the large crowds that will visit this city during the Atlantic Coast Bowling Association tournament, which will be held at Mechanics Building from April 29 to May 15, is that of the Worcester Night, which was organized by the Worcester Boosters, an organization that was formed for the express purpose of arranging for a special night at the big tournament.

The merchants and manufacturers held a meeting at the Bancroft Hotel and seventeen teams were entered, and it is expected that before the entries close on April 24 that at least twenty-five teams will journey here on a special train, accompanied by a band.

The teams that were entered represent manufacturers, department stores, the National Guard, Country Club, cafes and bowling alley owners —in fact almost all branches of business.

A public dance was held at Syracuse, N. Y., by the bowlers of that city for the purpose of securing funds to send a delegation to the big tournament, and a large sum was raised to hire a special train and send delegates that will try to parade the members of the Atlantic Coast Bowling Association to favor their city for the convention and tournament of next year.

Considerable rivalry exists between Washington, Syracuse and Philadelphia, as these cities are making a for next year.

May Display Parts of Fight Pictures

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Justice Department officials were not prepared to say as that they would do if an attempt should be made to display the Willard-Johnson fight pictures as part of a movie drama.

Because of the picture rights, it was understood at the department, proposed to censure the bitter rounds from the films, weave a love plot around them and display them under the name of some photo-drama, not as fight pictures. By this means, it was said, they believed they could evade the law against the interstate transportation of prize fight films.

Department officials admitted the idea was ingenious and some of them thought it might work.

ROOTERS PLAN BIG WELCOME TO SOX

Boston's Royal Rooters are today making elaborate preparations to give the Red Sox a rousing welcome when they play their opening game of the season here tomorrow against the Athletics. The Royal Rooters will be the guests of President Joseph J. Lannin of the Red Sox and will occupy section J.

John M. Killeen says that the rooters who made the trip to Philadelphia last Fall may secure tickets by applying to him. It is planned to have the rooters march to Fenway Park in a body. They will be supported by a band and are sure to make their presence known.

The appearance of the Royal Rooters should disperse the Athletics. The Mackmen have reason to remember this gallant band who helped the Braves win a world's championship last Fall.

Also, everybody will sing "Tessie."

Undreamed of Quality—Unheard of Price

NINE out of ten judges of whiskey that read this story are going to write us a letter quick when we tell them we'll sell them a full gallon of straight Kentucky whiskey for $1.95—and they've been paying $3.00 to $4.00 all their lives for the same quality—well—naturally they've "got to be shown" and—
We're going to show them. Just read this—

Try It at Our Expense

Send us $1.95 and we'll ship you this big full gallon jug of Richardson's 1861 Special straight Whiskey, aged in U. S. bonded warehouse.

Take one, two or three drinks, and if in your opinion it is not better than any $5.00 whiskey you ever tasted, you get your money back.

This is a good sporting proposition and it shows that we mean every word we say. You're the Judge—we rest our case with you.

"Work Now," the Watchword in California Tour Contest

California calls—don't you want to go? Don't you want one of the free trips which the Boston American is giving? What a question! But are you willing to work for it? That's the real question. Just a little work, just a little effort on your part will bring you one of these wonderful trips all through California, with a visit to both expositions, with free hotels, free auto rides, free everything and extra cash for spending money besides.

You Will Travel In Pullman Palaces All the Way

You will go through the Royal Gorge where the great crags rise like the spire of a cathedral to the very skies and where, at one place, your train hangs suspended between the roaring river below and the blue sky far above. Thrills? If you want a real thrill, just go through the Royal Gorge.

Then you will go on to Colorado, through the Garden of the Gods, where the spaces are so wide that the great, odd-shaped rocks in their vivid colorings look like huge flowers.

Then on and across the Great Salt Lake—a salten sea in the midst of a continent, where your train travels out over the waves, mile after mile, until you are almost out of sight of land, where bathers sit in forty feet of water as one sits in a bath tub. The water is so heavy with salt that you cannot sink.

Then, on over the Great Desert where you seem to see wide bodies of water in the desert sand, where you seem to see mountain ranges and trees only to find that there are no mountains, no trees and no water, but only hundreds of miles of desert, where many pioneers have forfeited their lives.

Then, up again, up! up! up! until you are fourteen thousand feet—almost three miles—in the air. Up where snow peaks are your neighbors, where you can snowball each other in the middle of summer—right over the top of the Sierra Nevada mountains.

And when you reach the crest and look below, there's the wonder land, there in its green valleys and its shimmering streams, far, far below you, is the land of your dreams—California.

Do you really want to go there? Then begin RIGHT NOW to use every minute of your spare time gathering the all-powerful vote coupons which appear in the Daily and Sunday American. It's merely a question of a little industry, a little sacrifice of your spare time NOW and if you will but put forth sufficient effort, your reward will be greater than you can possibly imagine. You will enjoy a tour DE LUXE arranged for you by the Boston American—and everyone in New England knows what that means—THE BEST THAT MONEY CAN BUY.

The Contest Manager has secured another supply of postal cards for the use of candidates in communicating with their friends. All you have to do is to ask for them—they are free, prepared for your benefit. Just write or telephone the Contest Manager and tell him how many you want and they will be sent you promptly.

There are two things of prime importance for every candidate to remember: first, the double vote value given for consecutive sets of coupons and, secondly, the necessity for notifying every friend, relative and acquaintance, whose names you can remember, of the fact that you are in this remarkable competition and you want their aid.

Anything in this life worth having is certainly worth working for and the twenty-five readers of this newspaper who are successful in winning these free tours to California will find the comparatively slight effort they have put forth splendid reward.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

The New York Senate has passed the Thompson bill, placing the street car lines under the control of the Common Councils of the cities in which they run, as well as under the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission. Practically the only votes against the bill were those of some New York city members, who feared the bill will interfere with the Fifth Avenue buses which enjoy a monopoly there.

H. C. Nettleton of the Chandler Motor Car Company is spending the week at the Cleveland plant, endeavoring to induce the powers that be to increase the Chandler allotment of this season.

A 2,000-story reinforced concrete addition is being made to the Concord avenue plant of the Packard addition will house the testing department of the company's laboratories.

E. R. Harrison, formerly of the advertising staff of the Chicago Tribune and later private secretary to the vice-president of the Chalmers Motor Company, has been appointed advertising manager of the Chalmers Motor Company. He succeeds Fred Fuessle, who was compelled to surrender his position after a short term because of continued ill health.

Dario Resta, winner of the Vanderbilt and Grand Prize races at San Francisco, and Bob Burman, the world's speed king, have been entered in the next Indianapolis 500-mile race at the wheel of Peugeot cars. A third Peugeot has been named, for which the driver, however, has not yet been selected. It is understood that Caracciola, Duray, runner-up in last year's Indianapolis event, is in line for the job, though this report lacks official confirmation.

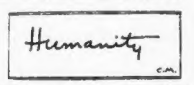
HUMANITY---A Great Word Truly

It Ought to Be Greater Than It Is, and It Will Be Some Day

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

A young and earnest artist, Clifton Meek, sends us the word he believes to be the most impressive in our language.

We reproduce the word here as he wrote it.



With the word he sends the following letter:

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

I submit the above word as the one which, in my opinion, has the greatest meaning.

It is the foundation of every noble work and the inspiration of every good thought. The idea of immortality itself, the desire to see the ones we love in a future life, is but another expression of this word.

It has been the watchword of every great benefactor our civilization has known, and our own Washington and Lincoln were its humble but worthy servants.

To me in its finer sense it expresses all that is good and great.

C. M.

We do not accept this word as the GREATEST in the language. It is a great word, for it represents the force, the finite intelligence, that infinite power has placed in charge of this beautiful earth.

It is the destiny of humanity to conquer the earth, cultivate it, eliminate what is horrible—deserts, mountains, swamps, poisonous serpents, in the planet; ignorance, superstition and brutality in humanity.

Humanity is a great word, but the race which is humanity is not as yet a finished thing.

Humanity requires apology rather than praise.

Humanity allows the great majority to suffer while the few have too much.

Humanity thinks more of money than of children, more of the vanity that leads to war than the science that works for peace.

Humanity is savage, not civilized.

In the ages to come, when the race will be worthy of its name, this age will be barely distinguished from the lowest and vilest periods of human brutality.

Humanity ought to be the great word in our language.

The idea of every man, woman and child should be that of DUTY TO HUMANITY.

The child from its birth should be taught what it owes to those who have suffered on this planet before us. The child should be taught that the first duty is to do its share.

"Humanity" thus far is backward and lacking. It is a word that stands for opportunity neglected, for brutality and self-indulgence.

A far higher word is SCIENCE, a clean word, a pure word, a noble word that represents conscience and the law of God in the battle against superstition, bigotry, ignorance, cruelty and vice.

See Your Own Country and Take a Trip Around the World—

All in a Short Time and at Small Expense

Copyright, 1915, by the Star Company.

In spite of the war, the danger of sea travel, the submarines and the mines, you can see this Summer the best things of Europe and of the whole world.

And you can see your own country at the same time, BY GOING TO THE WONDERFUL EXPOSITION AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The countries of the world have sent their most interesting exhibits and their most interesting people to the Exposition in San Francisco.

A trip around the Exposition by a thoughtful human being is really a trip around the world. It is a time saving trip with the best of things selected and put before you.

The working brains of the world, from here to China, and from China all away around back here have combined to build up in San Francisco an Exposition that is an education.

The Exposition offers to the people of this country an opportunity that will not come again for many years, if ever.

Thousands of interesting things you will see at that Exposition, and for every one of those thousands of things you will see something as interesting, IN YOUR OWN COUNTRY, as you travel to the Exposition and back again.

On the road to that Exposition you travel the real road of wonders. You may, going or coming, see the great Panama Canal, built by the government after private enterprise had failed. The Exposition celebrates the finishing of that canal, which unites the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans, and emphasizes man's power to control this earth. You ought to see that.

On the return journey you may see the wonderful Glacier National Park, the Canadian Rockies, the Grand Canyon of Arizona, the world's great wonder; the Petrified Forest, the reservations of different strange Indian tribes.

It is your duty to go to San Francisco if you possibly can. It is a short trip in time, even though you cross the entire continent. It is NOT expensive.

The railroads are reducing rates in all directions. They have arranged it so that without extra expense you may go on one railroad and come back on the other. Thus, if you cross from the Atlantic to the Pacific you travel six thousand miles in your own country, and do not go twice over the same spot.

The railroads have arranged also so that you may stop where you choose and continue your journey, seeing the wonders on the way without extra charge for railroad tickets or for sleeping car

"I see six thousand miles of the United States and real-

The Tiger Is Dangerous---But the Fly Is Deadlier Yet

The tiger slays his tens, but the germ-bearing fly slays its thousands. "Swat the fly" is a good motto, but why not anticipate it now?

The fly breeds in dirt. Clean up the dirty corners. Abolish dirt and the fly together.

How Old Is the Earth?

Astronomers Measure Its Age by Tens of Millions of Years and Geologists by Hundreds of Millions, While Evolutionists Want a Thousand Millions

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"PLEASE explain the methods of determining the age of the earth. From what point in the evolution of the earth, from the vaporous to the solid-encrusted mass, is this age calculated?—J. H. V."

There are two different ways of calculating the age of the earth, the geological and the astronomical. Their results do not agree, whence the vast cloud of uncertainty that covers the whole subject. Moreover, the results vary enormously, in each way of calculating, according to the different assumptions adopted as bases for computation. The astronomical results are nearer in accord with one another than the geological ones, but this arises from the fact that the astronomical method is simpler and based upon a smaller number of assumptions.

The astronomical calculation begins with the assumption that the earth cannot be older than the sun, since, whatever precise theory of the origin of the solar system is adopted, the sun has to be regarded as the generator of the system. Treating the sun as a heated body (at present in a compressed gaseous state), which is gradually cooling off and condensing through radiation, it is possible, on physical principles, to trace its history backward as well as forward. This has been done by Helmholtz, Newcomb and others, with the result of showing that probably not more than twenty or twenty-five million years ago the sun was a vast mass of rare nebulous matter, expanded over the entire space now included within the orbit of the most distant of its planets—Neptune. If that is so, and if the earth was formed out of a portion of the same nebulous matter that eventually condensed into the sun, then the earth's total age cannot be greater than twenty-five millions of years.

The same method of calculation shows that within from five to ten million years to come the sun will have grown so dense that it can no longer radiate heat as it has been doing hitherto, and when the sun is extinguished the earth will be uninhabitable.

So much for the astronomical aspect of the problem. The geological aspect is quite different. The geologist cannot for a moment be content with the exceedingly limited number of million years which the astronomer allots to him as representing the utmost possible duration of the earth.

He demands at least four times 25,000,000 years, and some geologists demand even ten times 25,000,000 years, as a comfortable and suitable chronological stage for the development of the earth. And that does not cover the entire period of the earth's existence, either.

It only begins where geology begins, that is to say, with the first recognizable rocky crust of the globe. Geology, properly speaking, knows nothing of the earth before it began automatically to record its history in its solidifying rocks. All the fiery ages which preceded that time belong to astronomy, not to geology. And yet astronomy, adding its quota of earth history to that of geology, makes the sum total a quarter, or a tenth part, of the amount that geology demands for its part alone.

And then, paleontological evolution, or the doctrine of the gradual development of living species out of remote ancestral forms, backs up the demands of geology for time, and yet more time, until, in some instances, the requisitions call for not less than a thousand million years. Through all that illimitable expanse of ages, they say, the earth must have been "growing up in might;" it could not have got along so far with less.

Occasionally there is a concession made, or a screw relaxed, in the calculation on one side or the other. Thus the astronomers have sometimes been willing to stretch their calculated limit out to fifty million, or even a hundred million, years, and, on the other hand, the geologists have, on occasion, cut down their estimates within the hundred million limit. Thus J. J. Joly, basing his calculation on the quantity of salt contained in the ocean, and the time that would be required for it to get there, leached out of the rocks, has estimated the geological age of the earth at 80,000,000 years, and Professor G. F. Becker, using a similar calculation, has reduced the age to 50,000,000 years.

There was a great brightening up of countenances among the calculators of the earth's age a few years ago when the amazing properties of radium were discovered. The disputing astronomers and geologists approached each other smiling, with outstretched hands, and congratulations were exchanged, because the former thought that a way had now been found to give the latter all the time they could possibly think of asking for, and the geologists were rejoiced because all the while they had been keeping half of their claims up their sleeves. The great reconciliator was thought to be the agent radium, unsuspectedly existing in the sun from the beginning of time and unostentatiously but most effectively supplying radiant energy from no visible or calculable source, thus secretly filling the solar pockets and enabling the profligate god of day to stretch the period of his squanderings over hundreds of millions of years, during which he would otherwise have lain chained in the dungeon of absolute physical bankruptcy.

But the radium hypothesis of solar radiation has been sleeping of late. It may have a good basis, but before it can be accepted a larger proportion of fact to theory will have to be offered.

More Truth Than Poetry

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

A Cinch!

Ye buds that gaily burgeon now,
I can invoke the Winter's chill
To blast each tender spray and bough
Whenever it shall be my will.

Ye little birds that blithely sing
Your happy songs in wood and fen,
I can recall the balmy Spring
And send ye shivering South again.

Ye maids that drape your scant attire
About your ill-protected forms,
I can, as soon as I desire,
Conceal your blood with Winter storms.

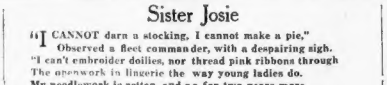
The biting winds will blow again,
The whirling snowflakes fly about,
The ice refill the river when
I let my furnace fire go out.

Honorable Terms

Perhaps Austria will not surrender till she is assured of half of the moving picture receipts.

Sister Josie

"I CANNOT darn a stocking, I cannot make a pie,"
Observed a fleet commander, with a despairing sigh.
"I can't embroider doilies, nor thread pink ribbons through
The openwork in lingerie the way young ladies do.
My needlework is rotten, and so for two years more
Till Sister Josie goes off watch I've got to stay ashore."



"I CANNOT hemstitch tidies," the gallant captain said;
"I cannot scour silver; I cannot make a bed,
I cannot give a pillow a deft and smoothing pat;
I can't crochet a necktie—I cannot even tat.
'Ways break the dishes whenever I pour tea;
So, while Sister Josie's boss, there'll be no ship for me."

A Thorough Job

The extent to which the liquor business is blowing up in Russia is shown by the explosion of an illicit vodka distillery near Petrograd.

That Was How Bryan Succeeded

Helen Ring Robinson, retired Colorado State Senator, says to succeed in politics one must keep silent. Somehow or other we think Mrs. Robinson is mistaken.

The Depth of Humility

To send them to the penitentiary was a heavy punishment for those election stealing Indiana officials, but to send them to a Kansas penitentiary was cruel and unusual.

Overvaluation

Widow worth seventy million and man worth forty million will be witnesses in lawsuit.—Headline. It is doubtful however if they will prove worth that much as witnesses.

Their's But to Do and Die

The difference between the blunder at Balaklava and the one at Neuve Chapelle was that some of the Light Brigade had a chance to get away.

What is Harvard Coming To?

The Sing Sing warden who says a diploma from that institution will soon be equivalent to a diploma from Harvard isn't particularly optimistic about the future of Harvard.

If I Were a Man, a Young Man

IF I were a man, a young man, and knew what I know today,
I would look in the eyes of Life undaunted
By any Fate that might threaten me.
I would give to the world what the world most wanted—
Manhood that knows it can do and be;
Courage that dares, and faith that can see
Clear into the depths of the human soul,
And find God there, and the ultimate goal,
If I were a man, a young man, and knew what I know today.

If I were a man, a young man, and knew what I know today,
I would think of myself as the masterful creature
Of all the Masterful plan;
The Formless Cause, with form and feature;
The Power that heeds not limit or ban;
Man, wonderful man.
I would do good deeds, and forget them straightway;
I would weave my woes into ropes and climb
Up to the heights of the helper's gateway;
And Life should serve me, and Time,
And I would sail out, and out, and find
The treasures that lie in the deep sea, Mind.
I would dream, and think, and act;
I would work, and love, and pray,
Till each dream and vision grew into a fact,
If I were a man, a young man, and knew what I know today.

If I were a man, a young man, and knew what I know today,
I would guard my passions as Kings guard treasures,
And keep them high and clean.
(For the will of a man, with his passions, measures;
It is strong as they are keen.)
I would think of each woman as some one's mother;
I would think of each man as my own blood brother,
And speed him along on his way.
And the glory of life in this wonderful hour
Should fill me and thrill me with Conscious power,
If I were a man, a young man, and knew what I know today.

See Your Own Country and Take a Trip Around the World—

ize that what you have seen on either side of your train is merely a little ribbon drawn across the continent. You will return with an idea of the greatness of this country, a better idea of the honor and responsibility that American citizenship brings with it and a keener sense of your own duty as a worker.

That is most important of all, a realization of duty and responsibility.

Plan to go to the Fair, persuade your friends to go with you. Take your children if you have any old enough to travel intelligently.
